==========

CHECKPOINT 5 — Current (Apr 14 2026)

--- HOME ---

https:

const NAV_LINKS: [string, string][] = [

[

],

];

const FOOTER_LINKS: [string, string][] = [

[

],

];

interface ServiceCard {

num: string;

href: string;

title: string;

body: string[];

note?: string;

prices: string[];

cta: string;

}

const SERVICE_CARDS: ServiceCard[] = [

{

num:

,

href:

,

title:

,

body: [

,

],

note:

,

prices: [

],

cta:

,

},

{

num:

but I love this" and "what if I need it."

Sometimes a piece has a story worth keeping with it. When those worlds collide and I can preserve a history, a moment, give it a new life to someone who knows that's just as valuable as the item — that's why I love this piece of my business. It brings the story back to connection at its core. When that matters, I document that too.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2hr min

Whole home: project pricing after walkthrough

See how inventory and legacy support works →

/services/house-calls

House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

That's the thing friends used to do.

The thing neighbors don't always exist for anymore.

The thing adult children need when they're in another city.

Once I know how your home works, it becomes easy for me to help keep it working — home check-ins, tech setup, hands-on home improvements, donation drop-offs, and the practical loose ends that make everyday life easier when someone trusted is paying attention.

$175/hr • 2hr min

Book practical help for your home →

/services/resale

Curated Resale & Consignment

Is it cool? Is it sellable? Will they even take it?

This is for clothing, designer bags, jewelry, and the pieces you know might still have value but do not want to spend hours platform-matching, measuring, negotiating, and managing yourself.

With an established luxury and resale background, I go through it piece by piece, decide what is worth the effort, and match each item to the platform where it makes the most sense. Clean, non-sellable items can be responsibly donated as part of the process.

You fill the waterproof bag, sign the agreement, and I handle the rest — pickup, styling, measurements, listing, buyer questions, returns, monthly check-ins, and payout on the agreed split.

Commission-based · agreement included

Schedule the handoff for resale →

rgba(154,91,60,0.07)

rgba(154,91,60,0.08)

background 0.2s

rgba(154,91,60,0.15)

resize

translateY(0)

opacity 0.8s ease, transform 0.8s ease

border-color 0.3s

, gap: 28, alignItems:

}} className=

, textTransform:

, border:

, flexDirection:

aria-label=

}}>{label}

</Link>

))}

)}

</nav>

Plain Text

```
  { }
  <section id=
```

,

gridTemplateColumns: isMobile ?

,

width:

,

}}>

{ }

{isMobile && (

<div style={{

backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})` ,

backgroundSize:

,

backgroundPosition:

,

height: Math.round(window.innerWidth * 0.56),

width:

, justifyContent:

,

animation:

}}>

When <em style={{ fontStyle:

, animation:

, animationDelay:

}}>

Welcome to the concierge for the things you don't want to handle.

<Link href=
)}
>See the work
</Link>

Plain Text

```
{ }
{!isMobile && (
  <div style={{
    backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})`,
    backgroundSize:
```

, gridTemplateColumns:
, gap: 24, marginBottom: 32 }} className=
, width:
, ...fi(
}}>
<div className=
, textAlign:
}}>Seattle Client
</footer> </blockquote>

</section>

Plain Text

```
{ }
<section ref={reg(
```

}}>
<img src=
The Well Lived Citizen Co
cta-grid
rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/services

all 0.25s

https:

alt=

style={{ height: 48, width:

Plus Jakarta Sans

s no longer a dinner service and not sellable as incomplete. The everyday things that still carry use, meaning, or resale value while someone is still living in the home.",

"I help find the gaps inside real household life — what still serves daily use, what deserves documentation or proper appraisal, and what we forgot was even in there. I focus on what can create value now — full stop. And yes, I find the drawers and closets that need a realistic plan before exhaustion turns into rushed decisions. We

s just as valuable as the item — that

s the thing friends used to do.",

"The thing neighbors don

window.innerWidth

setMobile(window.innerWidth

"there has to be an easier way"

See the work

Ready to move on it?

Book 4-Hour Reset

Resale bag pickup

Same-day pickup or courier handoff available.

Schedule Pickup

Need to leave before everything is packed?

The Work

Client

Seattle Client

Start anywhere.

See All Services & Pricing

Los Angeles, CA

© 2026 The Well Lived Citizen Co · Los Angeles, CA

, borderBottom:

--- ABOUT ---

https:

const CREDENTIALS = [

, textTransform:

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 64, alignItems:

}} className=

as const, top: 80 }}>

<img src={PHOTO} alt=

style={{ width:

, objectFit:

as const, objectPosition:

}}>{item}

))}

<Link href=

, textAlign:

s most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.</P>

<P>A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.</P>

<P>A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.</P>

<P>A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.</P>

<P>That instinct has followed me my entire life.</P>

<P>Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.</P>

<P>Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.</P>

<P>I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.</P>

<P>Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler

Meet Dayna

I have always been drawn to the life that lives inside people's most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.

A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.

A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.

A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.

That instinct has followed me my entire life.

Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.

Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.

I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.

Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler's scarves, I felt that same truth again: the profound human residue objects can hold.

I best understand my own attachment through moments of live music.

I remember recently feeling the same reverence I felt at that museum glass while watching Stevie Nicks pull her iconic capes from decades-old performances back onto the stage.

She said she had not seen some of them since the original songs were recorded, and that wearing them changed her for those few minutes.

I watched memory alter the way she moved, turned, and became the person from those moments again in real time.

That is the heart of this work.

Each of us has those items.

Those memories.

Those stories that are not on tape, in a notebook, or, worse, scattered across digital spaces where they can disappear into the constant shuffle of noise.

I do not believe people simply need help getting rid of things.

I believe they need help understanding what those things mean, what they are worth, what they still have left to do, and where the next chapter of those belongings belongs.

Sometimes that means preserving.

Sometimes it means cataloging, resale, or making sure a family story does not disappear into a donation pile.

The work is never really about the object.

It is about protecting the life it represents.

I came to understand the full weight of that truth in an entirely different way over the last year.

After an unforeseen flood, I found myself moving through 13 temporary homes and Airbnbs, carrying only fragments of the life I thought I would always recognize.

Years of belongings, valuables, and deeply personal objects were damaged or lost—many of them irreplaceable.

What surprised me most was not only the grief of the loss itself, but the disorientation of living without the things that quietly reflect you back to yourself each day.

The art you are used to seeing on your walls.

The clothes that belong in your closet.

The objects that make a place feel like the life you built.

When those things are suddenly gone—or when you watch them become drenched in water before you can do anything to save them—the experience is profoundly destabilizing.

Even for someone as deeply self-sufficient as I have always been.

I have spent my life moving independently, orchestrating complexity, leading across states, traveling constantly, and building systems that hold under pressure.

I have long been the person who can get anything done, anywhere, at any hour.

But this was different.

When it was my life, my loss, my dog beside me in a storage unit, and no clear sense yet of what the next version of home would be, I came face to face with something essential:

During that season, I was introduced to someone who, on paper, might have simply been called a home organizer.

But what she offered was something far deeper.

She stepped into the moments I could not hold alone.

The decisions I was too depleted to make.

The logistics I normally would have solved in seconds.

The emotional labor hidden inside every object, every box, every impossible next step.

She was not organizing.

She was relief.

She became calm in the middle of disruption, clarity in the middle of grief, and movement in a moment when everything in my life had stopped.

That experience changed the way I understand this work.

Because when it is your own life in pieces, even the most capable person can lose access to their usual clarity.

And in those moments, what matters most is not simply having someone who knows where things go.

It is having someone who can step into the emotional and operational weight of transition and quietly help carry it with you.

Over the years, this understanding has been reinforced in quieter ways, too.

A woman who once lived across the hall from me began as someone I simply greeted in passing at the call box or mailbox.

Over time, she became a close friend.

She is one of the most independent, self-sufficient, quietly powerful women I have ever known.

Even with family nearby, I found myself noticing something remarkable: people were naturally drawn to make life easier for her.

Not because she demanded it.

Not because she was incapable.

Simply because there was something about her presence that made others want to say, I can take care of that for you.

At 84, after hip surgery and countless chapters of life behind her, she kept moving forward—not because life had become easy, but because she met it with fullness, curiosity, and grace.

I found myself doing the same.

Setting up new televisions.

Making smart-home systems work seamlessly.

Adjusting thermostats.

Quietly removing friction so her life could remain as comfortable, elegant, and effortless as possible.

What stayed with me was not that she needed anyone.

It was the realization that everyone deserves to have that person.

The one who knows what to do.

The one who can make life easier.

The one who steps in before inconvenience becomes overwhelm, or before crisis turns into isolation.

Because not everyone has the network.

Not everyone knows who to call.

And sometimes disruption arrives suddenly, as it did for me.

What I have spent years doing instinctively—building systems, solving invisible problems, and creating custom solutions that make life move beautifully—has always come naturally.

What changed is understanding that these are not simply favors, talents, or professional strengths.

For the right person, in the right moment, they become essential care.

For more than 15 years, I have built my career creating environments that help people function beautifully in real life.

I have led large-scale operations, teams, and transformation initiatives for national brands, designing systems that solve invisible friction before it becomes visible failure.

That same philosophy now lives inside The Well Lived Citizen Co.

I bring together executive-level operational thinking, emotional discernment, resale and recoverable-value expertise, and a deep reverence for story, memory, and belonging.

I do not see homes as projects.

I see them as living systems shaped by identity, family, safety, and transition.

My role is to step into complexity with calm, create clarity around belongings, preserve what matters, recover hidden value, and build elegant systems that help people move forward without losing the story of how they got here.

That is what this business was built to do.

Background

Get in Touch

--- SERVICES & PRICING ---

door1

door2

door3

door4

flex-blocks

projects

/services/home-organization

Home Organization

/services/legacy

Legacy Catalog

/services/house-calls

House Calls

/services/resale

Resale

all 0.2s

door-header-grid

side-by-side guided sessions

hybrid decision blocks

full key handoff

solo resets while you're away

packing and move prep with or without you

closet and system continuity after landing

intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it's an on-site, task-focused immediate dive in

layout logic

sourcing recommendations

setup and install

label systems

pre-order coordination

workflow tools and install basics

measuring tools

reusable sort bins

cord wraps, Velcro, adapters, and utility hardware problem-solving tools that become necessary once the room opens up

/contact

rgba(154,91,60,0.08)

background 0.2s

rgba(154,91,60,0.15)

Essentials Landing

$150

Start-Up Landing

$250

Full Landing Bundle

$500

Starter Org Bundle

Mid Org Bundle

Full Org Bundle

the divorced mom who moved into a condo and suddenly had to see, for the first time, how much had actually been accumulated over a marriage — and had to agree to how it all gets split

the person who lived in the same apartment for ten years and had no idea how much had quietly gathered in the back of every closet

the career change that revealed a hundred film industry cords, gear, and references in the garage — from a life that isn't the current one anymore

the household where someone is ready to take control of their own story before it falls into someone else's hands

the family carrying years of meaningful, valuable, or hard-to-sort volume that deserves clarity without pressure

the person who wants to decide what stays, what moves on, and what gets remembered — while they are the one making the decisions

the drawers

the backup bedding

the linen closets stacked with care

the vintage pieces with story

the everyday things with future value

the candles tucked away because the house was always tidy enough

the designer pieces in sizes the family doesn't share

the collection no one else in the house ever learned to see

the objects that deserve clarity before family stress builds

digital inventory

photo documentation

room-by-room item notes

family distribution references

sentiment and story preservation
resale-ready routing notes
donation pathways
second-home and storage references
transition roadmap printable copies bound family binders
duplicate family copies digital or web-based workflows
newly divorced
recently widowed
first time living alone
partner travels constantly
adult children supporting from another city
practical aftermath no one stays to help with moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen
one-time practical resets
weekly support
monthly continuity
seasonal resets
remote family check-ins
post-project upkeep
vendor days
donation and return routing
home re-entry after travel
guest and event resets
the 4-hour practical reset
unwrap and sort everything
organize by month / size / first-use timeline
separate immediate essentials
identify duplicates
create return and resale routes

donate what will never realistically be used
clear packaging and gift-wrap chaos
order thank-you cards
export addresses to print
reset the room so it actually works for day one movers haulers cleaners
installers
contractors
storage teams
donation pickups
resale buyer coordination
shipping and courier
building and concierge protocol service appointment access clothing
designer accessories jewelry
home decor furniture
art rare textiles
story-rich vintage
one-of-a-kind pieces with real buyer demand pickup intake
evaluation
photography
platform matching buyer communication
routing

return logic
donation reroute when appropriate monthly reporting and payout rhythm
city pickup
route-based stop-ins
Uber Business courier
building desk drop
UPS Access Point
direct bag shipment
handoff during another project block
please get rid of this for me
Poshmark (Poshmark Ambassador — badge coming to profile soon) eBay (new business profile, credible reviews building)
Etsy
Facebook Marketplace
Chairish
Vinted
Vestiaire
Grailed
vetted local high-end resale
private collector network future hosted client sales through the site
what deserves effort
what should wait
what gains value with story
what belongs in the collector world
what should be held for better timing
what needs to leave fast
what is better donated what has emotional meaning worth preserving in the listing task lists that build over time practical resets

vendor access days

guest and event prep

move follow-through one-zone progress

post-travel home re-entry

the "I need a 4-hour you" kind of month

the far-and-few-between asks that are easier when time is already held

whole-home resets

packing and move days

larger catalogs

apartment landings

staged downsizing

multi-room continuity

family transition work

project-managed vendor sequences

tel:3234331350

flex md:hidden

Call Dayna

currentColor

strokeLinecap=

strokeLinejoin=

Plain Text

```
      <path d=
```

re away",

"packing and move prep with or without you",

"closet and system continuity after landing",

]} />

<Body>The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>What
```

s a life change. Sometimes it

s a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"the divorced mom who moved into a condo and suddenly had to see, for the first time, how much had actually been accumulated over a marriage — and had to agree to how it all gets split",

"the person who lived in the same apartment for ten years and had no idea how much had quietly gathered in the back of every closet",

"the career change that revealed a hundred film industry cords, gear, and references in the garage — from a life that isn

s hands",

"the family carrying years of meaningful, valuable, or hard-to-sort volume that deserves clarity without pressure",

"the person who wants to decide what stays, what moves on, and what gets remembered — while they are the one making the decisions",

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn

t always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you

t share",

"the collection no one else in the house ever learned to see",

"the objects that deserve clarity before family stress builds",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

Services & Pricing

The rest is usually built around that anyway.

Home Organization & Modern Move

The relief of the room.

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr • 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

Book a home org or move session

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

Clarity without fear.

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too — not for paperwork, but so that the next person who wears the fur coat, sets the table with the china, or lights the candle in the drawer has just enough of the mystery underneath to feel like they are living inside a second life, not just holding an object.

That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Start a legacy catalog or inventory project

For the things life leaves unfinished.

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls fills the missing person role in real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Book practical help for your home

Curated Resale & Consignment

Trust-forward thoughtful curation.

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me" service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Schedule the handoff for resale

Flex Blocks

Flex Blocks are 2, 4, or 6-hour reserved work blocks that can be used for focused task support, House Calls, continuity work, or the here-and-there things that build up between bigger projects.

They are ideal when you know support will come up, even if it doesn't need to happen all at once.

Best for:

The point is simple: your time is already there when life needs it.

Projects

Heavier work that needs straight-through momentum, multi-room lift, deeper decision-making, or full move support shifts into project pricing. Project scopes are quoted separately and not structured as blocked days as a starter.

Normal client stretches run in 2, 3, 4, 5, or at longest a 6-hour straight block. No single client is my only client in a day — resale work and client follow-up happen 7 days a week, and the schedule is built to keep all of it moving.

That includes:

Projects are quoted by scope, timeline, and intensity of lift.

Not Sure Where to Start?

Start with what is most real right now.

Most clients naturally move between these four services over time, and the work is designed to follow real life instead of forcing you into a rigid category.

Use the contact form to share what is sitting in your real moment, and we'll set up the most useful next step.

The Well Lived Citizen Co., a DBA of Well Dressed Citizen LLC

--- PRICING ---

Side-by-side guided sessions

Hybrid decision blocks

Full key handoff

Solo resets while you're away

Packing and move prep with or without you

Closet and system continuity after landing

Intake call and prior coordination

Layout logic

Sourcing recommendations

Setup and install

Label systems

Pre-order coordination

Workflow tools and install basics

Measuring tools, reusable sort bins

Cord wraps, Velcro, adapters, and utility hardware

Hourly

3 hr minimum

$150/hr

10 hr Flex Block

$1,250

25 hr Flex Block

$3,150

Studio / 1BR Move Reset

Flat day rate

$1,200/day

Larger homes & multi-room projects

Quoted after call

Digital inventory and photo documentation

Room-by-room item notes

Sentiment and story preservation

Resale-ready routing notes

Donation pathways

Second-home and storage references

Transition roadmap

Printable copies, bound family binders, duplicate family copies

Digital or web-based workflows

Warranties and home records

Appraisal routing and in-home coordination

Preservation storage notes

In-place resale routing for sensitive items

$175/hr

Legacy Project

20–30 hrs

From $3,500

Whole Home

40–80 hrs

From $8,500

Extended / Complex Legacy

From $15,000

Continuity Add-On

Ongoing Continuity

$500/mo

One-time practical resets

Weekly support

Monthly continuity

Seasonal resets

Post-project upkeep

Vendor days

Donation and return routing

Home re-entry after travel

Guest and event resets

The 4-hour practical reset

2 hr minimum

4-Hour Practical Reset

Available

Continuity Retainer

Clothing & Accessories

55% Dayna / 45% client

Designer

Furniture & Significant Home Pieces

Full Closet Liquidation

/contact s not worth listing, I

s borderline, I

Services & Pricing

01 — Home Organization & Modern Move

The relief of the room.

Your home, made to work for how you actually live. For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

How we can work together

What's included

Pricing

Add-Ons & Landing Support

02 — Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

Clarity without fear.

The operational side of a home, made visible again. This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

Not the will. Not the paperwork. Not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Possible outputs include

03 — House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

Ways to use House Calls

Route-based quick asks often absorbed into existing travel days.

04 — Curated Resale & Consignment

Trust-forward thoughtful curation.

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

No item count minimum. Fill what you have and send it when it's ready. For same-day pickup and courier handoff, I work with 60–90 qt totes. The strongest bags usually include contemporary designer, quality vintage, home décor, furniture, art, jewelry, and well-kept everyday brands.

Commission Structure

--- CONTACT ---

, textTransform:

- C.linen,

  outline:

, boxSizing:
as const,
borderRadius: 0, WebkitAppearance:
, flexWrap:
, textAlign:
, outline:
, alignItems:
,
userSelect:
as const,
}}>
<input type=
,
userSelect:
as const,
}}>
<input type=
}} />
);
type FormState = {
clientType: string;
need: string;
urgent: string;
fullName: string;
email: string;
phone: string;
contactMethod: string;
whatIsHappening: string;
bestTime: string;
service: string;
rooms: string;
propertyType: string;

```
moveInvolved: string;
accessStyle: string;
urgentDeadline: string;
legacyScope: string;
itemTypes: string[];
timeline: string;
startingPoint: string;
buildingNotes: string;
parkingNotes: string;
pets: string;
keyHandoff: string;
preferredDays: string;
bestTimeWindows: string;
pickupItems: string[];
pickupDirection: string;
pickupTiming: string;
freeText: string;
lastService: string;
whatNow: string;
howFound: string;
_gotcha: string;
};
const EMPTY: FormState = {
clientType:
, need:
, urgent:
,
fullName:
, email:
, phone:
, contactMethod:
,
```

whatIsHappening:
, bestTime:
,
service:
, rooms:
, propertyType:
, moveInvolved:
, accessStyle:
,
urgentDeadline:
, legacyScope:
, itemTypes: [],
timeline:
, startingPoint:
,
buildingNotes:
, parkingNotes:
, pets:
, keyHandoff:
,
preferredDays:
, bestTimeWindows:
,
pickupItems: [], pickupDirection:
, pickupTiming:
,
freeText:
, lastService:
, whatNow:
,
howFound:
, _gotcha:

;

const isBook = form.need ===

;

const isPickup = form.need ===

;

const isNotSure = form.need ===

;

const isReturning = form.clientType ===

;

const needSelected = !!form.need;

const clientSelected = !!form.clientType;

const showOrgHouse = form.service ===

|| form.service ===

;

const showLegacy = form.service ===

;

const showResale = form.service ===

) return;

if (Array.isArray(v)) data.append(k, v.join(

));

else data.append(k, v as string);

});

const urgencyTag = form.urgent ===

;

const needLabel = isCall ?

: isBook ?

: isPickup ?

;

const clientTag = isReturning ?

;

data.append(

, `${urgencyTag}${clientTag}${needLabel} — ${form.fullName || }`);

data.append(

, form.email);

const res = await fetch(FORMSPREE_ENDPOINT, {

method:

,

headers: {

},

body: data,

});

setStatus(res.ok ?

);

} catch { setStatus(

, backdropFilter:

, borderBottom:

, justifyContent:

}}>

<Link href=

, gap: 24 }} className=

Plain Text

```
          {([[
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 48, alignItems:

}} className=

Plain Text

```
        { }
         {status ===
```

)[0]}.` :

: isPickup

?

}

<a href=

name=

}} tabIndex={-1} autoComplete=

}))}

options={[

{ value:

, label:

, sub:

},

{ value:

, v)}

options={[

{ value:

},

{ value:

},

]}

/>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <RadioGroup name=
```

options={[

required>

<input style={inputStyle} type= required placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

required>

<RadioGroup name=

, v)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && isReturning && (isCall || isBook) && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

placeholder=

Plain Text

```
                    <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize:
```

as const }}

placeholder=

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                {!isReturning && (
                  <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize:
```

as const }}

placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                {showOrgHouse && (
                  <>
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

Plain Text

```
                        <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showLegacy && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showResale && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <CheckGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  <Field label=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                  <Field label=
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                  <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <CheckGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {needSelected && isNotSure && (
                <>
                  <Divider />
                  <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 120, resize:
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {needSelected && (
                <>
                  <Divider />
                  <Field label=
```

}

<a href=

}with your name in the subject line.

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {status ===
```

, border:

}}>

Something went wrong. Text directly at (323) 433-1350 or email dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com.

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {needSelected && ( <button type=
```

disabled={status ===

,

width:

}

</button>

)}

Plain Text

```
          </form>
        )}

      { }
      <div style={{ position:
```

}}>

dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com

 <div style={{ borderTop:

style={{

position:

,

textDecoration:

, boxShadow:

height=

viewBox=

fill= stroke=

strokeWidth=

```Plain Text <path d=
```

Plus Jakarta Sans

s going on?">

<textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize: "vertical" as const }}

placeholder="Two sentences is enough. What changed, what

s the real-life version?">

<textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize: "vertical" as const }}

placeholder="What changed, what

The Well Lived Citizen Co

by Dayna Brown

Get in Touch

Got it.

Direct Contact

Service Area

Response Time

--- SERVICE: HOME ORGANIZATION ---

side-by-side guided sessions

hybrid decision blocks

full key handoff

closet and system continuity after landing

intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it's an on-site, task-focused immediate dive in

layout logic

sourcing recommendations

setup and install

label systems

pre-order coordination

workflow tools and install basics

measuring tools

reusable sort bins

cord wraps, Velcro, adapters, and utility hardware

problem-solving tools that become necessary once the room opens up

Essentials Landing

$150

Start-Up Landing

$250

Full Landing Bundle

$500

Starter Org Bundle

Mid Org Bundle

Full Org Bundle

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

s included</SubHead>

<BulletList items={[

"intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it

m happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

01 — Home Organization & Modern Move

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr • 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: LEGACY ---

https:

alt=

style={{ width:

, height:

, objectFit:

, objectPosition:

}}

/>

<div style={{ position:

}} />

<div style={{ position:

, textTransform:

, marginTop: 12, fontStyle:

,

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway. </Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
    <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
    <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.</Body>

<Body>This service is the person who can see what is actually there.</Body>

Plain Text

```
    <SubHead>What Legacy Planning holds</SubHead>
    <Body>The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the <Body>This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a <Body>Possible outputs include:</Body>
    <BulletList items={[
```

, flexDirection:

, gap: 16, flexWrap:

as const }}>

<Link href=

,

}}>Get in Touch

</Link>

<Link href=

s a move. Sometimes it

t the current one anymore",

"the household where someone is ready to take control of their own story before it falls into someone else

t mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn re comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.</Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
    <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
    <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over <BulletList items={[
      "the drawers",
      "the backup bedding",
      "the linen closets stacked with care",
      "the vintage pieces with story",
      "the everyday things with future value",
      "the candles tucked away because the house was always tidy enough",
      "the designer pieces in sizes the family doesn
```

s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

02 — Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too. That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: HOUSE CALLS ---

newly divorced

recently widowed

first time living alone

partner travels constantly

adult children supporting from another city

practical aftermath no one stays to help with

moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen

one-time practical resets

weekly support

monthly continuity

seasonal resets

remote family check-ins

post-project upkeep

vendor days

donation and return routing

home re-entry after travel

guest and event resets

the 4-hour practical reset

unwrap and sort everything

organize by month / size / first-use timeline

separate immediate essentials

identify duplicates

create return and resale routes

donate what will never realistically be used

clear packaging and gift-wrap chaos

order thank-you cards

export addresses to print

reset the room so it actually works for day one

movers

haulers

cleaners

installers

contractors

storage teams

donation pickups

resale buyer coordination

shipping and courier

building and concierge protocol

service appointment access

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

03 — House Calls

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls fills the missing person role in real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

This is for:

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: CURATED RESALE ---

clothing

designer accessories

jewelry

home decor

furniture

art

rare textiles

story-rich vintage

one-of-a-kind pieces with real buyer demand

pickup

intake

evaluation

photography

platform matching

buyer communication

routing

return logic

donation reroute when appropriate

monthly reporting and payout rhythm

city pickup

route-based stop-ins

Uber Business courier

building desk drop

UPS Access Point

direct bag shipment

handoff during another project block

please get rid of this for me

Poshmark (Poshmark Ambassador — badge coming to profile soon)

eBay (new business profile, credible reviews building)

Etsy

Facebook Marketplace

Chairish

Vinted

Vestiaire

Grailed

vetted local high-end resale

future hosted client sales through the site

what deserves effort

what should wait

what gains value with story

what belongs in the collector world

what should be held for better timing

what needs to leave fast

what is better donated

what has emotional meaning worth preserving in the listing

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

re hoping for. We

Pricing

04 — Curated Resale & Consignment

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me" service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Get in Touch

All Services

==========

CHECKPOINT 4 — Pricing from approved doc

--- HOME ---

https:

const NAV_LINKS: [string, string][] = [

[

],

```
];
const FOOTER_LINKS: [string, string][] = [
[
],
];
interface ServiceCard {
num: string;
href: string;
title: string;
body: string[];
note?: string;
prices: string[];
cta: string;
}
const SERVICE_CARDS: ServiceCard[] = [
{
num:
,
href:
,
title:
,
body: [
,
],
note:
,
prices: [
],
cta:
,
},
```

{

num:

but I love this" and "what if I need it."

Sometimes a piece has a story worth keeping with it. When those worlds collide and I can preserve a history, a moment, give it a new life to someone who knows that's just as valuable as the item — that's why I love this piece of my business. It brings the story back to connection at its core. When that matters, I document that too.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2hr min

Whole home: project pricing after walkthrough

See how inventory and legacy support works →

/services/house-calls

House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

That's the thing friends used to do.

The thing neighbors don't always exist for anymore.

The thing adult children need when they're in another city.

Once I know how your home works, it becomes easy for me to help keep it working — home check-ins, tech setup, hands-on home improvements, donation drop-offs, and the practical loose ends that make everyday life easier when someone trusted is paying attention.

$175/hr • 2hr min

Book practical help for your home →

/services/resale

Curated Resale & Consignment

Is it cool? Is it sellable? Will they even take it?

This is for clothing, designer bags, jewelry, and the pieces you know might still have value but do not want to spend hours platform-matching, measuring, negotiating, and managing yourself.

With an established luxury and resale background, I go through it piece by piece, decide what is worth the effort, and match each item to the platform where it makes the most sense. Clean, non-sellable items can be responsibly donated as part of the process.

You fill the waterproof bag, sign the agreement, and I handle the rest — pickup, styling, measurements, listing, buyer questions, returns, monthly check-ins, and payout on the agreed split.

Commission-based · agreement included

Schedule the handoff for resale →

rgba(154,91,60,0.07)

rgba(154,91,60,0.08)

background 0.2s

rgba(154,91,60,0.15)

resize

translateY(0)

opacity 0.8s ease, transform 0.8s ease

border-color 0.3s

, gap: 28, alignItems:

}} className=

, textTransform:

, border:

, flexDirection:

aria-label=

}}>{label}

</Link>

))}

)}

</nav>

Plain Text

```
  { }
  <section id=
```

,

gridTemplateColumns: isMobile ?

,

width:

,

}}>

{ }

{isMobile && (

<div style={{

backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})`,

backgroundSize:

,

backgroundPosition:

,

height: Math.round(window.innerWidth * 0.56),

width:

, justifyContent:

,

animation:

}}>

When <em style={{ fontStyle:

, animation:

, animationDelay:

}}>

Welcome to the concierge for the things you don't want to handle.

<Link href=

)}

>See the work

</Link>

Plain Text

```
{ }
{!isMobile && (
  <div style={{
    backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})`,
    backgroundSize:
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 24, marginBottom: 32 }} className=

, width:

, ...fi(

}}>

<div className=

, textAlign:

}}>Seattle Client

</footer>

</blockquote>

</section>

Plain Text

```
  { }
  <section ref={reg(
```

}}>

<img

src=

The Well Lived Citizen Co

cta-grid

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/services

all 0.25s

https:

alt=

style={{ height: 48, width:

Plus Jakarta Sans

s no longer a dinner service and not sellable as incomplete. The everyday things that still carry use, meaning, or resale value while someone is still living in the home.",

"I help find the gaps inside real household life — what still serves daily use, what deserves documentation or proper appraisal, and what we forgot was even in there. I focus on what can create value now — full stop. And yes, I find the drawers and closets that need a realistic plan before exhaustion turns into rushed decisions. We

s just as valuable as the item — that

s the thing friends used to do.",
"The thing neighbors don
window.innerWidth
setMobile(window.innerWidth
"there has to be an easier way"
See the work
Ready to move on it?
Book 4-Hour Reset
Resale bag pickup
Same-day pickup or courier handoff available.
Schedule Pickup
Need to leave before everything is packed?
The Work
Client
Seattle Client
Start anywhere.
See All Services & Pricing
Los Angeles, CA
© 2026 The Well Lived Citizen Co · Los Angeles, CA
, borderBottom:
--- ABOUT ---
https:
const CREDENTIALS = [
, textTransform:
, gridTemplateColumns:
, gap: 64, alignItems:
}} className=
as const, top: 80 }}>
 <img src={PHOTO} alt=
style={{ width:
, objectFit:

as const, objectPosition:

}}>{item}

))}

<Link href=

, textAlign:

s most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.</P>

<P>A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.</P>

<P>A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.</P>

<P>A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.</P>

<P>That instinct has followed me my entire life.</P>

<P>Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.</P>

<P>Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.</P>

<P>I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.</P>

<P>Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler

Meet Dayna

I have always been drawn to the life that lives inside people's most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.

A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.

A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.

A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.

That instinct has followed me my entire life.

Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.

Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.

I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.

Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler's scarves, I felt that same truth again: the profound human residue objects can hold.

I best understand my own attachment through moments of live music.

I remember recently feeling the same reverence I felt at that museum glass while watching Stevie Nicks pull her iconic capes from decades-old performances back onto the stage.

She said she had not seen some of them since the original songs were recorded, and that wearing them changed her for those few minutes.

I watched memory alter the way she moved, turned, and became the person from those moments again in real time.

That is the heart of this work.

Each of us has those items.

Those memories.

Those stories that are not on tape, in a notebook, or, worse, scattered across digital spaces where they can disappear into the constant shuffle of noise.

I do not believe people simply need help getting rid of things.

I believe they need help understanding what those things mean, what they are worth, what they still have left to do, and where the next chapter of those belongings belongs.

Sometimes that means preserving.

Sometimes it means cataloging, resale, or making sure a family story does not disappear into a donation pile.

The work is never really about the object.

It is about protecting the life it represents.

I came to understand the full weight of that truth in an entirely different way over the last year.

After an unforeseen flood, I found myself moving through 13 temporary homes and Airbnbs, carrying only fragments of the life I thought I would always recognize.

Years of belongings, valuables, and deeply personal objects were damaged or lost—many of them irreplaceable.

What surprised me most was not only the grief of the loss itself, but the disorientation of living without the things that quietly reflect you back to yourself each day.

The art you are used to seeing on your walls.

The clothes that belong in your closet.

The objects that make a place feel like the life you built.

When those things are suddenly gone—or when you watch them become drenched in water before you can do anything to save them—the experience is profoundly destabilizing.

Even for someone as deeply self-sufficient as I have always been.

I have spent my life moving independently, orchestrating complexity, leading across states, traveling constantly, and building systems that hold under pressure.

I have long been the person who can get anything done, anywhere, at any hour.

But this was different.

When it was my life, my loss, my dog beside me in a storage unit, and no clear sense yet of what the next version of home would be, I came face to face with something essential:

During that season, I was introduced to someone who, on paper, might have simply been called a home organizer.

But what she offered was something far deeper.

She stepped into the moments I could not hold alone.

The decisions I was too depleted to make.

The logistics I normally would have solved in seconds.

The emotional labor hidden inside every object, every box, every impossible next step.

She was not organizing.

She was relief.

She became calm in the middle of disruption, clarity in the middle of grief, and movement in a moment when everything in my life had stopped.

That experience changed the way I understand this work.

Because when it is your own life in pieces, even the most capable person can lose access to their usual clarity.

And in those moments, what matters most is not simply having someone who knows where things go.

It is having someone who can step into the emotional and operational weight of transition and quietly help carry it with you.

Over the years, this understanding has been reinforced in quieter ways, too.

A woman who once lived across the hall from me began as someone I simply greeted in passing at the call box or mailbox.

Over time, she became a close friend.

She is one of the most independent, self-sufficient, quietly powerful women I have ever known.

Even with family nearby, I found myself noticing something remarkable: people were naturally drawn to make life easier for her.

Not because she demanded it.

Not because she was incapable.

Simply because there was something about her presence that made others want to say, I can take care of that for you.

At 84, after hip surgery and countless chapters of life behind her, she kept moving forward—not because life had become easy, but because she met it with fullness, curiosity, and grace.

I found myself doing the same.

Setting up new televisions.

Making smart-home systems work seamlessly.

Adjusting thermostats.

Quietly removing friction so her life could remain as comfortable, elegant, and effortless as possible.

What stayed with me was not that she needed anyone.

It was the realization that everyone deserves to have that person.

The one who knows what to do.

The one who can make life easier.

The one who steps in before inconvenience becomes overwhelm, or before crisis turns into isolation.

Because not everyone has the network.

Not everyone knows who to call.

And sometimes disruption arrives suddenly, as it did for me.

What I have spent years doing instinctively—building systems, solving invisible problems, and creating custom solutions that make life move beautifully—has always come naturally.

What changed is understanding that these are not simply favors, talents, or professional strengths.

For the right person, in the right moment, they become essential care.

For more than 15 years, I have built my career creating environments that help people function beautifully in real life.

I have led large-scale operations, teams, and transformation initiatives for national brands, designing systems that solve invisible friction before it becomes visible failure.

That same philosophy now lives inside The Well Lived Citizen Co.

I bring together executive-level operational thinking, emotional discernment, resale and recoverable-value expertise, and a deep reverence for story, memory, and belonging.

I do not see homes as projects.

I see them as living systems shaped by identity, family, safety, and transition.

My role is to step into complexity with calm, create clarity around belongings, preserve what matters, recover hidden value, and build elegant systems that help people move forward without losing the story of how they got here.

That is what this business was built to do.

Background

Get in Touch

--- SERVICES & PRICING ---

door1

door2

door3

door4

flex-blocks

projects

, gap: 28, alignItems:

}} className=

Plain Text

```
{([[
```

, textTransform:

, border:

, flexDirection:

aria-label=

, gap: 16 }}>

{([[

as const }}>

{[

{ path:

, num:

, label:

},

{ path:

, textAlign:

as const, alignItems:

}}>

Plain Text

```
    { }
    { }
    { }
    <section id=
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 32, alignItems:

, marginBottom: 48 }} className=

,

]} />

<Body>The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What's included</SubHead>
      <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.
</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>$150/hr · 3 hr minimum</PricingLine>
        <PricingLine>$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom g
        <PricingLine>Project scopes are quoted separately.</PricingLine>
      </PricingBox>
      <Link href=
```

, justifyContent:

, alignItems:

price=

Plain Text

```
        Toilet paper, paper towels, basic utensils, water glasses, a wine or wh
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        Everything in Essentials, plus a starter dish set, dish soap, hamper, h
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        5 bins, 3 bin latches, and a rolling cart. Good for a single closet, pa
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        10 bins in mixed sizes, 6 bin latches, a rolling cart, 2 drawer divider
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        20 bins across multiple sizes, full latch set, rolling cart, 4 drawer d
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
    </section>

    <Divider />

    { }
    { }
    { }
    <section id=
```

,

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway. </Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
      <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up ov <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.</Body>

<Body>This service is the person who can see what is actually there.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What Legacy Planning holds</SubHead>
      <Body>The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as t <Body>This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps <Body>Possible outputs include:</Body>
      <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too — not for paperwork, but so that the next person who wears the fur coat, sets the table with the china, or lights the candle in the drawer has just enough of the mystery underneath to feel like they are living inside a second life, not just holding an object.</Body>

<Body>That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>How project timelines work</SubHead>
      <Body>Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a s <Body>A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with

      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>Single room or storage unit: $175/hr · 2 hr minimum</Prici
        <PricingLine>Whole home: project quote after walkthrough</PricingLine>
```

```
        </PricingBox>
        <Link href=
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Ways to use House Calls</SubHead>
        <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Real-Life Example</SubHead>
        <Body>The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds o <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.</Body>

<Body>That's House Calls.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Vendor & project oversight</SubHead>
        <Body>When needed, House Calls also covers:</Body> <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Service area</SubHead>
        <Body>LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route
```

```
        <Body>Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whe

        <PricingBox>
          <PricingLine>$175/hr · 2 hr minimum</PricingLine>
          <PricingLine>Retainer continuity available for repeat clients</PricingL <PricingLine>No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationsh
        </PricingBox>
        <Link href=
```

,

]} />

<Body>The work is not just listing. It includes:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

,

]} />

<Body>The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Easy handoff and pickup</SubHead>
        <Body>The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.</Body>

<Body>The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Intake bags and safe transport</SubHead>
        <Body>All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected
        { }
        <Body>When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly

        <SubHead>Item standards</SubHead>
        <Body>This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, don service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.</Body>
```

<Body>The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.</Body>

{ }

<Body>The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>Where items sell</SubHead>
<Body>Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for <Body>Current sales channels include:</Body> <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>Intake review timing</SubHead>
<Body>Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business
<Body>Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was receiv
<Body>If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline,

<SubHead>Realistic resale timeline</SubHead>
<Body>This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.</Body> <Body>Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.</Body>
{ }
<Body>Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 mo <Body>The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If

<SubHead>The kind of judgment you are hiring</SubHead>
<Body>The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things.
<BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.</Body>

<Body>That is the work.</Body>

<Body>Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>Commission-based · agreement required</PricingLine>
      </PricingBox>
      <Link href=
```

I need a 4-hour you" kind of month

the far-and-few-between asks that are easier when time is already held

whole-home resets

packing and move days

larger catalogs

apartment landings

staged downsizing

multi-room continuity

family transition work

project-managed vendor sequences

/contact

background 0.2s

tel:3234331350

flex md:hidden

Call Dayna

currentColor

strokeLinecap=

strokeLinejoin=

Plain Text

```
      <path d=
```

Plus Jakarta Sans

re away",

"packing and move prep with or without you",

"closet and system continuity after landing",

]} />

<Body>The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.</Body>

```
Plain Text

        <SubHead>What
```

s a life change. Sometimes it

s a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"the divorced mom who moved into a condo and suddenly had to see, for the first time, how much had actually been accumulated over a marriage — and had to agree to how it all gets split",

"the person who lived in the same apartment for ten years and had no idea how much had quietly gathered in the back of every closet",

"the career change that revealed a hundred film industry cords, gear, and references in the garage — from a life that isn

s hands",

"the family carrying years of meaningful, valuable, or hard-to-sort volume that deserves clarity without pressure",

"the person who wants to decide what stays, what moves on, and what gets remembered — while they are the one making the decisions",

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn

t always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you

t share",

"the collection no one else in the house ever learned to see",

"the objects that deserve clarity before family stress builds",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

The Well Lived Citizen Co

Services & Pricing

The rest is usually built around that anyway.

Home Organization & Modern Move

The relief of the room.

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr • 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

Book a home org or move session

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

Clarity without fear.

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too — not for paperwork, but so that the next person who wears the fur coat, sets the table with the china, or lights the candle in the drawer has just enough of the mystery underneath to feel like they are living inside a second life, not just holding an object.

That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Start a legacy catalog or inventory project

House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls fills the missing person role in real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Book practical help for your home

Curated Resale & Consignment

Trust-forward thoughtful curation.

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me" service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Schedule the handoff for resale

Flex Blocks

Flex Blocks are 2, 4, or 6-hour reserved work blocks that can be used for focused task support, House Calls, continuity work, or the here-and-there things that build up between bigger projects.

They are ideal when you know support will come up, even if it doesn't need to happen all at once.

Best for:

The point is simple: your time is already there when life needs it.

Projects

Heavier work that needs straight-through momentum, multi-room lift, deeper decision-making, or full move support shifts into project pricing. Project scopes are quoted separately and not structured as blocked days as a starter.

Normal client stretches run in 2, 3, 4, 5, or at longest a 6-hour straight block. No single client is my only client in a day — resale work and client follow-up happen 7 days a week, and the schedule is built to keep all of it moving.

That includes:

Projects are quoted by scope, timeline, and intensity of lift.

Not Sure Where to Start?

Start with what is most real right now.

Most clients naturally move between these four services over time, and the work is designed to follow real life instead of forcing you into a rigid category.

Use the contact form to share what is sitting in your real moment, and we'll set up the most useful next step.

The Well Lived Citizen Co., a DBA of Well Dressed Citizen LLC

--- PRICING ---

Side-by-side guided sessions

Hybrid decision blocks

Full key handoff

Solo resets while you're away

Packing and move prep with or without you

Closet and system continuity after landing

Intake call and prior coordination

Layout logic

Sourcing recommendations

Setup and install

Label systems

Pre-order coordination

Workflow tools and install basics

Measuring tools, reusable sort bins

Cord wraps, Velcro, adapters, and utility hardware

Hourly

3 hr minimum

$150/hr

10 hr Flex Block

$1,250

25 hr Flex Block

$3,150

Studio / 1BR Move Reset

Flat day rate

$1,200/day

Larger homes & multi-room projects

Quoted after call

Digital inventory and photo documentation

Room-by-room item notes

Sentiment and story preservation

Resale-ready routing notes

Donation pathways

Second-home and storage references

Transition roadmap

Printable copies, bound family binders, duplicate family copies

Digital or web-based workflows

Warranties and home records

Appraisal routing and in-home coordination

Preservation storage notes

In-place resale routing for sensitive items

$175/hr

Legacy Project

20–30 hrs

From $3,500

Whole Home

40–80 hrs

From $8,500

Extended / Complex Legacy

From $15,000

Continuity Add-On

Ongoing Continuity

$500/mo

One-time practical resets

Weekly support

Monthly continuity

Seasonal resets

Post-project upkeep

Vendor days

Donation and return routing

Home re-entry after travel

Guest and event resets

The 4-hour practical reset

2 hr minimum

4-Hour Practical Reset

Available

Continuity Retainer

Clothing & Accessories

55% Dayna / 45% client

Designer

Furniture & Significant Home Pieces

Full Closet Liquidation

/contact

s not worth listing, I

s borderline, I

Services & Pricing

01 — Home Organization & Modern Move

The relief of the room.

Your home, made to work for how you actually live. For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

How we can work together

What's included

Pricing

Add-Ons & Landing Support

02 — Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

Clarity without fear.

The operational side of a home, made visible again. This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

Not the will. Not the paperwork. Not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Possible outputs include

03 — House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

Ways to use House Calls

Route-based quick asks often absorbed into existing travel days.

04 — Curated Resale & Consignment

Trust-forward thoughtful curation.

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

No item count minimum. Fill what you have and send it when it's ready. For same-day pickup and courier handoff, I work with 60–90 qt totes. The strongest bags usually include contemporary designer, quality vintage, home décor, furniture, art, jewelry, and well-kept everyday brands.

Commission Structure

--- CONTACT ---

, textTransform:

- C.linen,

  outline:

  , boxSizing:

  as const,

  borderRadius: 0, WebkitAppearance:

  , flexWrap:

  , textAlign:

  , outline:

  , alignItems:

  ,

  userSelect:

  as const,

  }}>

  <input type=

  ,

  userSelect:

  as const,

  }}>

  <input type=

  }} />

  );

type FormState = {

clientType: string;

need: string;

urgent: string;

fullName: string;

```
email: string;
phone: string;
contactMethod: string;
whatIsHappening: string;
bestTime: string;
service: string;
rooms: string;
propertyType: string;
moveInvolved: string;
accessStyle: string;
urgentDeadline: string;
legacyScope: string;
itemTypes: string[];
timeline: string;
startingPoint: string;
buildingNotes: string;
parkingNotes: string;
pets: string;
keyHandoff: string;
preferredDays: string;
bestTimeWindows: string;
pickupItems: string[];
pickupDirection: string;
pickupTiming: string;
freeText: string;
lastService: string;
whatNow: string;
howFound: string;
_gotcha: string;
};
const EMPTY: FormState = {
clientType:
```

, need:
, urgent:
,
fullName:
, email:
, phone:
, contactMethod:
,
whatIsHappening:
, bestTime:
,
service:
, rooms:
, propertyType:
, moveInvolved:
, accessStyle:
,
urgentDeadline:
, legacyScope:
, itemTypes: [],
timeline:
, startingPoint:
,
buildingNotes:
, parkingNotes:
, pets:
, keyHandoff:
,
preferredDays:
, bestTimeWindows:
,
pickupItems: [], pickupDirection:

, pickupTiming:

,

freeText:

, lastService:

, whatNow:

,

howFound:

, _gotcha:

;

const isBook = form.need ===

;

const isPickup = form.need ===

;

const isNotSure = form.need ===

;

const isReturning = form.clientType ===

;

const needSelected = !!form.need;

const clientSelected = !!form.clientType;

const showOrgHouse = form.service ===

|| form.service ===

;

const showLegacy = form.service ===

;

const showResale = form.service ===

) return;

if (Array.isArray(v)) data.append(k, v.join(

));

else data.append(k, v as string);

});

const urgencyTag = form.urgent ===

;

const needLabel = isCall ?

: isBook ?

: isPickup ?

;

const clientTag = isReturning ?

;

data.append(

, `${urgencyTag}${clientTag}${needLabel} — ${form.fullName || }`);

data.append(

, form.email);

const res = await fetch(FORMSPREE_ENDPOINT, {

method:

,

headers: {

},

body: data,

});

setStatus(res.ok ?

);

} catch { setStatus(

, backdropFilter:

, borderBottom:

, justifyContent:

}}>

<Link href=

, gap: 24 }} className=

```
{([[
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 48, alignItems:

}} className=

Plain Text

```
      { }
       {status ===
```

)[0]}.` :

: isPickup

?

}

<a href=

name=

}} tabIndex={-1} autoComplete=

}))}

options={[

{ value:

, label:

, sub:

},

{ value:

, v)}

options={[

{ value:

},

{ value:

},

]}

/>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                  <RadioGroup name=
```

options={[

required>

<input style={inputStyle} type= required placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=
required>

<RadioGroup name=

, v)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && isReturning && (isCall || isBook) && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

placeholder=

Plain Text

```
                    <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize:
```

as const }}

placeholder=

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                  {!isReturning && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize:
```

as const }}

placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showOrgHouse && (
                    <>
                      <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                        <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

Plain Text

```
                        <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showLegacy && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showResale && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <CheckGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                <Field label=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                <Field label=
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                  <CheckGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && isNotSure && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                  <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 120, resize:
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

}

<a href=

}with your name in the subject line.

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {status ===
```

, border:

}}>

Something went wrong. Text directly at (323) 433-1350 or email dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com.

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && ( <button type=
```

disabled={status ===

,

width:

}

</button>

)}

Plain Text

```
          </form>
        )}

      { }
      <div style={{ position:
```

}}>

dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com

 <div style={{ borderTop:

style={{

position:

,

textDecoration:

, boxShadow:

height=

viewBox=

fill= stroke=

strokeWidth=

```Plain Text <path d=
```

Plus Jakarta Sans

s going on?">

<textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize: "vertical" as const }}

placeholder="Two sentences is enough. What changed, what

s the real-life version?">

<textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize: "vertical" as const }}

placeholder="What changed, what

The Well Lived Citizen Co

by Dayna Brown

Get in Touch

Got it.

Direct Contact

Service Area

Response Time

--- SERVICE: HOME ORGANIZATION ---

side-by-side guided sessions

hybrid decision blocks

full key handoff

closet and system continuity after landing

intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it's an on-site, task-focused immediate dive in

layout logic

sourcing recommendations

setup and install

label systems

pre-order coordination

workflow tools and install basics

measuring tools

reusable sort bins

cord wraps, Velcro, adapters, and utility hardware

problem-solving tools that become necessary once the room opens up

Essentials Landing

$150

Start-Up Landing

$250

Full Landing Bundle

$500

Starter Org Bundle

Mid Org Bundle

Full Org Bundle

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

s included</SubHead>

<BulletList items={[

"intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it

m happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it

s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

01 — Home Organization & Modern Move

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr • 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: LEGACY ---

https:

alt=

style={{ width:

, height:

, objectFit:

, objectPosition:

}}

/>

<div style={{ position:

}} />

<div style={{ position:

, textTransform:

, marginTop: 12, fontStyle:

,

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway. </Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
    <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
    <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.</Body>

<Body>This service is the person who can see what is actually there.</Body>

Plain Text

```
    <SubHead>What Legacy Planning holds</SubHead>
    <Body>The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the <Body>This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a <Body>Possible outputs include:</Body>
    <BulletList items={[
```

, flexDirection:

, gap: 16, flexWrap:

as const }}>

<Link href=

,

}}>Get in Touch

</Link>

<Link href=

s a move. Sometimes it

t the current one anymore",

"the household where someone is ready to take control of their own story before it falls into someone else

t mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn re comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.</Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
    <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
    <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over <BulletList items={[
      "the drawers",
      "the backup bedding",
      "the linen closets stacked with care",
      "the vintage pieces with story",
      "the everyday things with future value",
      "the candles tucked away because the house was always tidy enough",
      "the designer pieces in sizes the family doesn
```

s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

02 — Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too. That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: HOUSE CALLS ---

newly divorced

recently widowed

first time living alone

partner travels constantly

adult children supporting from another city

practical aftermath no one stays to help with

moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen

one-time practical resets

weekly support

monthly continuity

seasonal resets

remote family check-ins

post-project upkeep

vendor days

donation and return routing

home re-entry after travel

guest and event resets

the 4-hour practical reset

unwrap and sort everything

organize by month / size / first-use timeline

separate immediate essentials

identify duplicates

create return and resale routes

donate what will never realistically be used

clear packaging and gift-wrap chaos

order thank-you cards

export addresses to print

reset the room so it actually works for day one

movers

haulers

cleaners

installers

contractors

storage teams

donation pickups

resale buyer coordination

shipping and courier

building and concierge protocol

service appointment access

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

03 — House Calls

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls fills the missing person role in real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

This is for:

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: CURATED RESALE ---

clothing

designer accessories

jewelry

home decor

furniture

art

rare textiles

story-rich vintage

one-of-a-kind pieces with real buyer demand

pickup

intake

evaluation

photography

platform matching

buyer communication

routing

return logic

donation reroute when appropriate
monthly reporting and payout rhythm
city pickup
route-based stop-ins
Uber Business courier
building desk drop
UPS Access Point
direct bag shipment
handoff during another project block
please get rid of this for me
Poshmark (Poshmark Ambassador — badge coming to profile soon)
eBay (new business profile, credible reviews building)
Etsy
Facebook Marketplace
Chairish
Vinted
Vestiaire
Grailed
vetted local high-end resale
future hosted client sales through the site
what deserves effort
what should wait
what gains value with story
what belongs in the collector world
what should be held for better timing
what needs to leave fast
what is better donated what has emotional meaning worth preserving in the listing
rgba(245,240,232,0.65)
/contact
/services re hoping for. We

Pricing

04 — Curated Resale & Consignment

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me" service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Get in Touch

All Services

==========

CHECKPOINT 3 — Gayle testimonial added

--- HOME ---

https:

const NAV_LINKS: [string, string][] = [

[

],

];

const FOOTER_LINKS: [string, string][] = [

[

],

];

interface ServiceCard {

num: string;

href: string;

title: string;

body: string[];

note?: string;

prices: string[];

cta: string;

}

const SERVICE_CARDS: ServiceCard[] = [

{

num:

,

href:

,

title:

,

body: [

,

],

note:

,

prices: [

],

cta:

,

},

{

num:

but I love this" and "what if I need it."

Sometimes a piece has a story worth keeping with it. When those worlds collide and I can preserve a history, a moment, give it a new life to someone who knows that's just as valuable as the item — that's why I love this piece of my business. It brings the story back to connection at its core. When that matters, I document that too.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2hr min

Whole home: project pricing after walkthrough

See how inventory and legacy support works →

/services/house-calls

House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

That's the thing friends used to do.

The thing neighbors don't always exist for anymore.

The thing adult children need when they're in another city.

Once I know how your home works, it becomes easy for me to help keep it working — home check-ins, tech setup, hands-on home improvements, donation drop-offs, and the practical loose ends that make everyday life easier when someone trusted is paying attention.

$175/hr • 2hr min

Book practical help for your home →

/services/resale

Curated Resale & Consignment

Is it cool? Is it sellable? Will they even take it?

This is for clothing, designer bags, jewelry, and the pieces you know might still have value but do not want to spend hours platform-matching, measuring, negotiating, and managing yourself.

With an established luxury and resale background, I go through it piece by piece, decide what is worth the effort, and match each item to the platform where it makes the most sense. Clean, non-sellable items can be responsibly donated as part of the process.

You fill the waterproof bag, sign the agreement, and I handle the rest — pickup, styling, measurements, listing, buyer questions, returns, monthly check-ins, and payout on the agreed split.

Commission-based · agreement included

Schedule the handoff for resale →

rgba(154,91,60,0.07)

rgba(154,91,60,0.08)

background 0.2s

rgba(154,91,60,0.15)

resize

translateY(0)

opacity 0.8s ease, transform 0.8s ease

border-color 0.3s

, gap: 28, alignItems:

}} className=

, textTransform:

, border:

, flexDirection:

aria-label=

}}>{label}

</Link>

))}

)}

</nav>

Plain Text

```
    { }
    <section id=
```

,
gridTemplateColumns: isMobile ?

,
width:

,
}}>
{ }
{isMobile && (
<div style={{
backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})`,
backgroundSize:

,
backgroundPosition:

,
height: Math.round(window.innerWidth * 0.56),
width:
, justifyContent:

,
animation:
}}>
When <em style={{ fontStyle:
, animation:
, animationDelay:
}}>
Welcome to the concierge for the things you don't want to handle.
 <Link href=
)}
>See the work
</Link>

Plain Text

```
      { }
      {!isMobile && (
        <div style={{
          backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})`,
          backgroundSize:
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 24, marginBottom: 32 }} className=

, width:

, ...fi(

}}>

<div className=

, textAlign:

}}>Seattle Client

</footer>

</blockquote>

</section>

Plain Text

```
  { }
  <section ref={reg(
```

, gap: 80, alignItems:

}}>

Not sure where to start? <em style={{ fontStyle:

, marginBottom: 28 }}>

No pressure. The whole point is to make your life easier to navigate from here.

<Link href=

, alignItems:

Plus Jakarta Sans

s no longer a dinner service and not sellable as incomplete. The everyday things that still carry use, meaning, or resale value while someone is still living in the home.",

"I help find the gaps inside real household life — what still serves daily use, what deserves documentation or proper appraisal, and what we forgot was even in there. I focus on what can create value now — full stop. And yes, I find the drawers and closets that need a realistic plan before exhaustion turns into rushed decisions. We

s just as valuable as the item — that

s the thing friends used to do.",

"The thing neighbors don

window.innerWidth

setMobile(window.innerWidth

"there has to be an easier way"

See the work

Ready to move on it?

Book 4-Hour Reset

Resale bag pickup

Same-day pickup or courier handoff available.

Schedule Pickup

Need to leave before everything is packed?

The Work

Client

Seattle Client

Start anywhere.

See All Services & Pricing

The Well Lived Citizen Co

Los Angeles, CA

© 2026 The Well Lived Citizen Co · Los Angeles, CA

, borderBottom:

--- ABOUT ---

https:

const CREDENTIALS = [

, textTransform:

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 64, alignItems:

}} className=

as const, top: 80 }}>

<img src={PHOTO} alt=

style={{ width:

, objectFit:

as const, objectPosition:

}}>{item}

))}

<Link href=

, textAlign:

s most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.</P>

<P>A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.</P>

<P>A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.</P>

<P>A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.</P>

<P>That instinct has followed me my entire life.</P>

<P>Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.</P>

<P>Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.</P>

<P>I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.</P>

<P>Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler

Meet Dayna

I have always been drawn to the life that lives inside people's most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.

A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.

A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.

A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.

That instinct has followed me my entire life.

Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.

Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.

I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.

Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler's scarves, I felt that same truth again: the profound human residue objects can hold.

I best understand my own attachment through moments of live music.

I remember recently feeling the same reverence I felt at that museum glass while watching Stevie Nicks pull her iconic capes from decades-old performances back onto the stage.

She said she had not seen some of them since the original songs were recorded, and that wearing them changed her for those few minutes.

I watched memory alter the way she moved, turned, and became the person from those moments again in real time.

That is the heart of this work.

Each of us has those items.

Those memories.

Those stories that are not on tape, in a notebook, or, worse, scattered across digital spaces where they can disappear into the constant shuffle of noise.

I do not believe people simply need help getting rid of things.

I believe they need help understanding what those things mean, what they are worth, what they still have left to do, and where the next chapter of those belongings belongs.

Sometimes that means preserving.

Sometimes it means cataloging, resale, or making sure a family story does not disappear into a donation pile.

The work is never really about the object.

It is about protecting the life it represents.

I came to understand the full weight of that truth in an entirely different way over the last year.

After an unforeseen flood, I found myself moving through 13 temporary homes and Airbnbs, carrying only fragments of the life I thought I would always recognize.

Years of belongings, valuables, and deeply personal objects were damaged or lost—many of them irreplaceable.

What surprised me most was not only the grief of the loss itself, but the disorientation of living without the things that quietly reflect you back to yourself each day.

The art you are used to seeing on your walls.

The clothes that belong in your closet.

The objects that make a place feel like the life you built.

When those things are suddenly gone—or when you watch them become drenched in water before you can do anything to save them—the experience is profoundly destabilizing.

Even for someone as deeply self-sufficient as I have always been.

I have spent my life moving independently, orchestrating complexity, leading across states, traveling constantly, and building systems that hold under pressure.

I have long been the person who can get anything done, anywhere, at any hour.

But this was different.

When it was my life, my loss, my dog beside me in a storage unit, and no clear sense yet of what the next version of home would be, I came face to face with something essential:

During that season, I was introduced to someone who, on paper, might have simply been called a home organizer.

But what she offered was something far deeper.

She stepped into the moments I could not hold alone.

The decisions I was too depleted to make.

The logistics I normally would have solved in seconds.

The emotional labor hidden inside every object, every box, every impossible next step.

She was not organizing.

She was relief.

She became calm in the middle of disruption, clarity in the middle of grief, and movement in a moment when everything in my life had stopped.

That experience changed the way I understand this work.

Because when it is your own life in pieces, even the most capable person can lose access to their usual clarity.

And in those moments, what matters most is not simply having someone who knows where things go.

It is having someone who can step into the emotional and operational weight of transition and quietly help carry it with you.

Over the years, this understanding has been reinforced in quieter ways, too.

A woman who once lived across the hall from me began as someone I simply greeted in passing at the call box or mailbox.

Over time, she became a close friend.

She is one of the most independent, self-sufficient, quietly powerful women I have ever known.

Even with family nearby, I found myself noticing something remarkable: people were naturally drawn to make life easier for her.

Not because she demanded it.

Not because she was incapable.

Simply because there was something about her presence that made others want to say, I can take care of that for you.

At 84, after hip surgery and countless chapters of life behind her, she kept moving forward—not because life had become easy, but because she met it with fullness, curiosity, and grace.

I found myself doing the same.

Setting up new televisions.

Making smart-home systems work seamlessly.

Adjusting thermostats.

Quietly removing friction so her life could remain as comfortable, elegant, and effortless as possible.

What stayed with me was not that she needed anyone.

It was the realization that everyone deserves to have that person.

The one who knows what to do.

The one who can make life easier.

The one who steps in before inconvenience becomes overwhelm, or before crisis turns into isolation.

Because not everyone has the network.

Not everyone knows who to call.

And sometimes disruption arrives suddenly, as it did for me.

What I have spent years doing instinctively—building systems, solving invisible problems, and creating custom solutions that make life move beautifully—has always come naturally.

What changed is understanding that these are not simply favors, talents, or professional strengths.

For the right person, in the right moment, they become essential care.

For more than 15 years, I have built my career creating environments that help people function beautifully in real life.

I have led large-scale operations, teams, and transformation initiatives for national brands, designing systems that solve invisible friction before it becomes visible failure.

That same philosophy now lives inside The Well Lived Citizen Co.

I bring together executive-level operational thinking, emotional discernment, resale and recoverable-value expertise, and a deep reverence for story, memory, and belonging.

I do not see homes as projects.

I see them as living systems shaped by identity, family, safety, and transition.

My role is to step into complexity with calm, create clarity around belongings, preserve what matters, recover hidden value, and build elegant systems that help people move forward without losing the story of how they got here.

That is what this business was built to do.

Background

Get in Touch

--- SERVICES & PRICING ---

door1

door2

door3

door4

flex-blocks

projects

, gap: 28, alignItems:

}} className=

Plain Text

```
        {([[
```

, textTransform:

, border:

, flexDirection:

aria-label=

, gap: 16 }}>

{([[

as const }}>

{[

{ path:

, num:

, label:

},

{ path:

, textAlign:

as const, alignItems:

}}>

Plain Text

```
    { }
    { }
    { }
    <section id=
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 32, alignItems:

, marginBottom: 48 }} className=

,

]} />

<Body>The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What's included</SubHead>
      <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.
</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>$150/hr · 3 hr minimum</PricingLine>
        <PricingLine>$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom g
        <PricingLine>Project scopes are quoted separately.</PricingLine>
      </PricingBox>
      <Link href=
```

, justifyContent:

, alignItems:

price=

Plain Text

```
        Toilet paper, paper towels, basic utensils, water glasses, a wine or wh
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        Everything in Essentials, plus a starter dish set, dish soap, hamper, h
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        5 bins, 3 bin latches, and a rolling cart. Good for a single closet, pa
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        10 bins in mixed sizes, 6 bin latches, a rolling cart, 2 drawer divider
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        20 bins across multiple sizes, full latch set, rolling cart, 4 drawer d
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
    </section>

    <Divider />

    { }
    { }
```

```
    { }
    <section id=
```

,

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway. </Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
      <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up ov <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.</Body>

<Body>This service is the person who can see what is actually there.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What Legacy Planning holds</SubHead>
      <Body>The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as t
      <Body>This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps <Body>Possible outputs include:</Body>
      <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too — not for paperwork, but so that the next person who wears the fur coat, sets the table with the china, or lights the candle in the drawer has just enough of the mystery underneath to feel like they are living inside a second life, not just holding an object.</Body>

<Body>That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>How project timelines work</SubHead>
      <Body>Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a s <Body>A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with

      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>Single room or storage unit: $175/hr · 2 hr minimum</Prici
        <PricingLine>Whole home: project quote after walkthrough</PricingLine>
      </PricingBox>
      <Link href=
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful. </Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>Ways to use House Calls</SubHead>
      <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>Real-Life Example</SubHead>
      <Body>The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds o <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.</Body>

<Body>That's House Calls.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>Vendor & project oversight</SubHead>
      <Body>When needed, House Calls also covers:</Body> <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>Service area</SubHead>
      <Body>LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route
      <Body>Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whe

      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>$175/hr · 2 hr minimum</PricingLine>
        <PricingLine>Retainer continuity available for repeat clients</PricingL <PricingLine>No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationsh
      </PricingBox>
      <Link href=
```

,

]} />

<Body>The work is not just listing. It includes:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

,

]} />

<Body>The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>Easy handoff and pickup</SubHead>
      <Body>The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.</Body>

<Body>The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>Intake bags and safe transport</SubHead>
<Body>All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected
{ }
<Body>When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly

<SubHead>Item standards</SubHead>
<Body>This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, don service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.</Body>
```

<Body>The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.</Body>

{ }

<Body>The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>Where items sell</SubHead>
<Body>Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for <Body>Current sales channels include:</Body>
<BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>Intake review timing</SubHead>
<Body>Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business
<Body>Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was receiv
<Body>If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline,

<SubHead>Realistic resale timeline</SubHead>
<Body>This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.</Body>
<Body>Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.</Body>
```

```
        { }
        <Body>Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 mo <Body>The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If

        <SubHead>The kind of judgment you are hiring</SubHead>
        <Body>The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things.
        <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.</Body>

<Body>That is the work.</Body>

<Body>Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <PricingBox>
          <PricingLine>Commission-based · agreement required</PricingLine>
        </PricingBox>
        <Link href=
```

I need a 4-hour you" kind of month

the far-and-few-between asks that are easier when time is already held

whole-home resets

packing and move days

larger catalogs

apartment landings

staged downsizing

multi-room continuity

family transition work

project-managed vendor sequences

/contact

background 0.2s

tel:3234331350

flex md:hidden

Call Dayna

currentColor

strokeLinecap=

strokeLinejoin=

```Plain Text <path d=
```

Plus Jakarta Sans

re away",

"packing and move prep with or without you",

"closet and system continuity after landing",

]} />

<Body>The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.</Body>

```Plain Text <SubHead>What
```

s a life change. Sometimes it

s a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"the divorced mom who moved into a condo and suddenly had to see, for the first time, how much had actually been accumulated over a marriage — and had to agree to how it all gets split",

"the person who lived in the same apartment for ten years and had no idea how much had quietly gathered in the back of every closet",

"the career change that revealed a hundred film industry cords, gear, and references in the garage — from a life that isn

s hands",

"the family carrying years of meaningful, valuable, or hard-to-sort volume that deserves clarity without pressure",

"the person who wants to decide what stays, what moves on, and what gets remembered — while they are the one making the decisions",

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn

t always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you

t share",

"the collection no one else in the house ever learned to see",

"the objects that deserve clarity before family stress builds",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

The Well Lived Citizen Co

Services & Pricing

The rest is usually built around that anyway.

Home Organization & Modern Move

The relief of the room.

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr • 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

Book a home org or move session

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

Clarity without fear.

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too — not for paperwork, but so that the next person who wears the fur coat, sets the table with the china, or lights the candle in the drawer has just enough of the mystery underneath to feel like they are living inside a second life, not just holding an object.

That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Start a legacy catalog or inventory project

House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls fills the missing person role in real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Book practical help for your home

Curated Resale & Consignment

Trust-forward thoughtful curation.

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me" service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Schedule the handoff for resale

Flex Blocks

Flex Blocks are 2, 4, or 6-hour reserved work blocks that can be used for focused task support, House Calls, continuity work, or the here-and-there things that build up between bigger projects.

They are ideal when you know support will come up, even if it doesn't need to happen all at once.

Best for:

The point is simple: your time is already there when life needs it.

Projects

Heavier work that needs straight-through momentum, multi-room lift, deeper decision-making, or full move support shifts into project pricing. Project scopes are quoted separately and not structured as blocked days as a starter.

Normal client stretches run in 2, 3, 4, 5, or at longest a 6-hour straight block. No single client is my only client in a day — resale work and client follow-up happen 7 days a week, and the schedule is built to keep all of it moving.

That includes:

Projects are quoted by scope, timeline, and intensity of lift.

Not Sure Where to Start?

Start with what is most real right now.

Most clients naturally move between these four services over time, and the work is designed to follow real life instead of forcing you into a rigid category.

Use the contact form to share what is sitting in your real moment, and we'll set up the most useful next step.

The Well Lived Citizen Co., a DBA of Well Dressed Citizen LLC

--- PRICING ---

1fr auto

Home Org

homeorg

Legacy

Special Delivery

special

Resale

#fff

Closet and Wardrobe Organization

Typical 4-8 hours. 3-hour minimum.

$150/hr

Room-by-Room Home Organization

Typical 12-30+ hours. Hourly or quoted as a project after walkthrough.

$150/hr or project

Studio or 1BR Move-In Setup

Boxes unpacked while you are at work. Day one: bed built, clean sheets, nightstand, phone chargers, clothes unpacked and hung, essentials organized. Intake form sent ahead with any needs and optional add-ons. I can preorder a desk or TV to arrive and build it while you are gone. I mount and install anything up to 43 inches on most standard wall mounts. Day two if needed: dresser builds, couch placement, art hung, remaining boxes. 8-hour day, straight through. 1BR confirmed after consult call depending on volume and needs.

$1,200/day

Larger Move-In (2BR+)

Falls into project or custom pricing depending on scope. We will talk through it and flex for what makes sense for both your needs and your budget.

Quoted after call

Storage Unit Organization

Typical 4-8 hours. 3-hour minimum. Sort, consolidate, label.

Furniture Assembly

IKEA, West Elm, CB2, Target, vintage. 2-hour minimum.

~$200

Budget

5 clear bins, basic tool set with drill, surge protectors with USB, extension cord, under-bed storage, rolling rack, smart bulbs, table lamp, dish set, utensils, dish soap, laundry soap, bath mats, 2 towels

~$350

Essential

Everything in Budget plus quality tool set you keep, premium storage, bedding starter, expanded kitchen basics, cleaning supplies

~$500

Full Setup

Everything in Essential plus desk if needed, additional lighting, cable management, full kitchen and bathroom basics for hosting in week one

https:

alt=

style={{ width:

, height: 420, objectFit:

, objectPosition:

}}

/>

<div style={{ position:

}} />

<div style={{ position:

, flexDirection:

as const, justifyContent:

, textTransform:

, border:

, marginBottom: 16 }}>

<Row s=

/>

<Row s=

}} />

Plain Text

```
        { }
        <div id=
```

, marginBottom: 16 }}>

<Row s=

/>

<Row s=

, marginBottom: 16 }}>

<Row s=

/>

<Row s=

, gap: 16, justifyContent:

, flexWrap:

as const }}>

<Link href=

,

}}>Back to Home</button>

</Link>

<a href=

Pricing

How I charge

Hourly

3-hour minimum. Single rooms, closets, one-day jobs.

$175/hr

Legacy & Special Delivery

3-hour minimum. All legacy planning and Special Delivery work.

Home Org Flex Block

$1,250 / 10 hrs

$125/hr • Save $250

$3,150 / 25 hrs

$126/hr • Save $600

Legacy & Special Delivery Flex Block

$1,500 / 10 hrs

$150/hr • Save $250

$3,650 / 25 hrs

$146/hr • Save $725

Home Organization

ADHD & Sensory-Sensitive Spaces

Guidance only. Not a clinical service.

Move-In Setup Bundles (optional)

Bundles are supply cost only. Labor is separate at hourly rate.

Legacy Planning & Catalog

Common next step:

Home Readiness Bundle (optional • ~$150)

Supply cost is separate from hourly labor. Confirmed before purchase.

Curated Resale

Add-Ons

What I do and what I do not do

Ready to start?

Call or text (323) 433-1350. The first conversation is always free.

Back to Home

Call or Text

--- CONTACT ---

, textTransform:

- C.linen,
  outline:
  , boxSizing:
  as const,
  borderRadius: 0, WebkitAppearance:
  , flexWrap:
  , textAlign:
  , outline:
  , alignItems:
  ,
  userSelect:

```
      as const,
      }}>
      <input type=
      ,
      userSelect:
      as const,
      }}>
      <input type=
      }} />
      );
type FormState = {
clientType: string;
need: string;
urgent: string;
fullName: string;
email: string;
phone: string;
contactMethod: string;
whatIsHappening: string;
bestTime: string;
service: string;
rooms: string;
propertyType: string;
moveInvolved: string;
accessStyle: string;
urgentDeadline: string;
legacyScope: string;
itemTypes: string[];
timeline: string;
startingPoint: string;
buildingNotes: string;
parkingNotes: string;
```

```
pets: string;
keyHandoff: string;
preferredDays: string;
bestTimeWindows: string;
pickupItems: string[];
pickupDirection: string;
pickupTiming: string;
freeText: string;
lastService: string;
whatNow: string;
howFound: string;
_gotcha: string;
};
const EMPTY: FormState = {
clientType:
, need:
, urgent:
,
fullName:
, email:
, phone:
, contactMethod:
,
whatIsHappening:
, bestTime:
,
service:
, rooms:
, propertyType:
, moveInvolved:
, accessStyle:
,
```

urgentDeadline:
, legacyScope:
, itemTypes: [],
timeline:
, startingPoint:
,
buildingNotes:
, parkingNotes:
, pets:
, keyHandoff:
,
preferredDays:
, bestTimeWindows:
,
pickupItems: [], pickupDirection:
, pickupTiming:
,
freeText:
, lastService:
, whatNow:
,
howFound:
, _gotcha:
;
const isBook = form.need ===
;
const isPickup = form.need ===
;
const isNotSure = form.need ===
;
const isReturning = form.clientType ===
;

const needSelected = !!form.need;

const clientSelected = !!form.clientType;

const showOrgHouse = form.service ===

|| form.service ===

;

const showLegacy = form.service ===

;

const showResale = form.service ===

) return;

if (Array.isArray(v)) data.append(k, v.join(

));

else data.append(k, v as string);

});

const urgencyTag = form.urgent ===

;

const needLabel = isCall ?

: isBook ?

: isPickup ?

;

const clientTag = isReturning ?

;

data.append(

, `${urgencyTag}${clientTag}${needLabel} — ${form.fullName || }`);

data.append(

, form.email);

const res = await fetch(FORMSPREE_ENDPOINT, {

method:

,

headers: {

},

body: data,

});

setStatus(res.ok ?

);

} catch { setStatus(

, backdropFilter:

, borderBottom:

, justifyContent:

}}>

<Link href=

, gap: 24 }} className=

```
Plain Text

          {([[
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 48, alignItems:

}} className=

```
Plain Text

        { }
         {status ===
```

)[0]}.` :

: isPickup

?

}

<a href=

name=

}} tabIndex={-1} autoComplete=

}))}

options={[

{ value:

, label:

, sub:

},

{ value:

, v)}

options={[

{ value:

},

{ value:

},

]}

/>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                  <RadioGroup name=
```

options={[

required>

<input style={inputStyle} type= required placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

required>

<RadioGroup name=

, v)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && isReturning && (isCall || isBook) && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                  <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

placeholder=

Plain Text

```
                  <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize:
```

as const }}

placeholder=

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                {!isReturning && (
                  <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize:
```

as const }}

placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                {showOrgHouse && (
                  <>
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

Plain Text

```
                      <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showLegacy && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showResale && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <CheckGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  <Field label=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                  <Field label=
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                  <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <CheckGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {needSelected && isNotSure && (
                <>
                  <Divider />
                  <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 120, resize:
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {needSelected && (
                <>
                  <Divider />
                  <Field label=
```

}

<a href=

}with your name in the subject line.

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {status ===
```

, border:

}}>

Something went wrong. Text directly at (323) 433-1350 or email dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com.

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {needSelected && ( <button type=
```

disabled={status ===

,

width:

}

</button>

)}

Plain Text

```
          </form>
        )}

      { }
      <div style={{ position:
```

}}>

dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com

 <div style={{ borderTop:

style={{

position:

,

textDecoration:

, boxShadow:

height=

viewBox=

fill= stroke=

strokeWidth=

Plain Text

```
      <path d=
```

Plus Jakarta Sans

s going on?">

<textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize: "vertical" as const }}

placeholder="Two sentences is enough. What changed, what

s the real-life version?">

<textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize: "vertical" as const }}

placeholder="What changed, what

The Well Lived Citizen Co

by Dayna Brown

Get in Touch

Got it.

Direct Contact

Service Area

Response Time

--- SERVICE: HOME ORGANIZATION ---

side-by-side guided sessions

hybrid decision blocks

full key handoff

closet and system continuity after landing

intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it's an on-site, task-focused immediate dive in

layout logic

sourcing recommendations

setup and install

label systems

pre-order coordination

workflow tools and install basics

measuring tools

reusable sort bins

cord wraps, Velcro, adapters, and utility hardware

problem-solving tools that become necessary once the room opens up

Essentials Landing

$150

Start-Up Landing

$250

Full Landing Bundle

$500

Starter Org Bundle

Mid Org Bundle

Full Org Bundle

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

s included</SubHead>

<BulletList items={[

"intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it

m happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it

s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

01 — Home Organization & Modern Move

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr · 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: LEGACY ---

the divorced mom who moved into a condo and suddenly had to see, for the first time, how much had actually been accumulated over a marriage — and had to agree to how it all gets split

the person who lived in the same apartment for ten years and had no idea how much had quietly gathered in the back of every closet

the career change that revealed a hundred film industry cords, gear, and references in the garage — from a life that isn't the current one anymore

the household where someone is ready to take control of their own story before it falls into someone else's hands

the family carrying years of meaningful, valuable, or hard-to-sort volume that deserves clarity without pressure

the person who wants to decide what stays, what moves on, and what gets remembered — while they are the one making the decisions

the drawers

the backup bedding

the linen closets stacked with care

the vintage pieces with story

the everyday things with future value

the candles tucked away because the house was always tidy enough

the designer pieces in sizes the family doesn't share

the collection no one else in the house ever learned to see

the objects that deserve clarity before family stress builds

digital inventory

photo documentation

room-by-room item notes

family distribution references

sentiment and story preservation

resale-ready routing notes

donation pathways

second-home and storage references

transition roadmap

printable copies

bound family binders

duplicate family copies

digital or web-based workflows

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

s a move. Sometimes it

t the current one anymore",

"the household where someone is ready to take control of their own story before it falls into someone else

t mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn re comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.</Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

```Plain Text
    <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
    <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over <BulletList items={[
      "the drawers",
      "the backup bedding",
      "the linen closets stacked with care",
      "the vintage pieces with story",
      "the everyday things with future value",
      "the candles tucked away because the house was always tidy enough",
      "the designer pieces in sizes the family doesn
```

s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

02 — Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too. That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: HOUSE CALLS ---

newly divorced

recently widowed

first time living alone

partner travels constantly

adult children supporting from another city

practical aftermath no one stays to help with

moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen

one-time practical resets

weekly support

monthly continuity
seasonal resets
remote family check-ins
post-project upkeep
vendor days
donation and return routing
home re-entry after travel
guest and event resets
the 4-hour practical reset
unwrap and sort everything
organize by month / size / first-use timeline
separate immediate essentials
identify duplicates
create return and resale routes
donate what will never realistically be used
clear packaging and gift-wrap chaos
order thank-you cards
export addresses to print
reset the room so it actually works for day one movers haulers cleaners
installers
contractors
storage teams
donation pickups
resale buyer coordination
shipping and courier
building and concierge protocol
service appointment access
rgba(245,240,232,0.65)
/contact

/services

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

03 — House Calls

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls fills the missing person role in real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

This is for:

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: CURATED RESALE ---

clothing

designer accessories

jewelry

home decor

furniture

art

rare textiles

story-rich vintage

one-of-a-kind pieces with real buyer demand

pickup

intake

evaluation

photography

platform matching

buyer communication

routing

return logic

donation reroute when appropriate

monthly reporting and payout rhythm

city pickup

route-based stop-ins

Uber Business courier

building desk drop

UPS Access Point

direct bag shipment

handoff during another project block

please get rid of this for me

Poshmark (Poshmark Ambassador — badge coming to profile soon)

eBay (new business profile, credible reviews building)

Etsy

Facebook Marketplace

Chairish

Vinted

Vestiaire

Grailed

vetted local high-end resale

future hosted client sales through the site

what deserves effort

what should wait

what gains value with story

what belongs in the collector world

what should be held for better timing

what needs to leave fast

what is better donated

what has emotional meaning worth preserving in the listing

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

re hoping for. We

Pricing

04 — Curated Resale & Consignment

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me" service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Get in Touch

All Services

==========

CHECKPOINT 2 — Relief language removed

--- HOME ---

https:

const NAV_LINKS: [string, string][] = [

[

],

];

const FOOTER_LINKS: [string, string][] = [

[

],

];

interface ServiceCard {

num: string;

href: string;

title: string;

body: string[];

note?: string;

prices: string[];

cta: string;

}

const SERVICE_CARDS: ServiceCard[] = [

{

num:

,

href:
,
title:
,
body: [
,
],
note:
,
prices: [
],
cta:
,
},
{
num:

but I love this" and "what if I need it."

Sometimes a piece has a story worth keeping with it. When those worlds collide and I can preserve a history, a moment, give it a new life to someone who knows that's just as valuable as the item — that's why I love this piece of my business. It brings the story back to connection at its core. When that matters, I document that too.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2hr min

Whole home: project pricing after walkthrough

See how inventory and legacy support works →

/services/house-calls

House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

That's the thing friends used to do.

The thing neighbors don't always exist for anymore.

The thing adult children need when they're in another city.

Once I know how your home works, it becomes easy for me to help keep it working — home check-ins, tech setup, hands-on home improvements, donation drop-offs, and the practical loose ends that make everyday life easier when someone trusted is paying attention.

$175/hr · 2hr min

Book practical help for your home →

/services/resale

Curated Resale & Consignment

Is it cool? Is it sellable? Will they even take it?

This is for clothing, designer bags, jewelry, and the pieces you know might still have value but do not want to spend hours platform-matching, measuring, negotiating, and managing yourself.

With an established luxury and resale background, I go through it piece by piece, decide what is worth the effort, and match each item to the platform where it makes the most sense. Clean, non-sellable items can be responsibly donated as part of the process.

You fill the waterproof bag, sign the agreement, and I handle the rest — pickup, styling, measurements, listing, buyer questions, returns, monthly check-ins, and payout on the agreed split.

Commission-based · agreement included

Schedule the handoff for resale →

rgba(154,91,60,0.07)

rgba(154,91,60,0.08)

background 0.2s

rgba(154,91,60,0.15)

resize

translateY(0)

opacity 0.8s ease, transform 0.8s ease

border-color 0.3s

, gap: 28, alignItems:

}} className=

, textTransform:

, border:

, flexDirection:

aria-label=

}}>{label}

</Link>

))}

)}
</nav>

Plain Text

```
  { }
  <section id=
```

,
gridTemplateColumns: isMobile ?
,
width:
,
}}>
{ }
{isMobile && (
<div style={{
backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})`,
backgroundSize:
,
backgroundPosition:
,
height: Math.round(window.innerWidth * 0.56),
width:
, justifyContent:
,
animation:
}}>
When <em style={{ fontStyle:
, animation:
, animationDelay:
}}>

Welcome to the concierge for the things you don't want to handle.

<Link href=

)}

>See the work

</Link>

Plain Text

```
{ }
{!isMobile && (
  <div style={{
    backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})`,
    backgroundSize:
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 24, marginBottom: 32 }} className=

, width:

, ...fi(

}}>

<div className=

, gap: 80, alignItems:

}}>

Not sure where to start? <em style={{ fontStyle:

, marginBottom: 28 }}>

No pressure. The whole point is to make your life easier to navigate from here.

<Link href=

, alignItems:

Plus Jakarta Sans

s no longer a dinner service and not sellable as incomplete. The everyday things that still carry use, meaning, or resale value while someone is still living in the home.",

"I help find the gaps inside real household life — what still serves daily use, what deserves documentation or proper appraisal, and what we forgot was even in there. I focus on what can create value now — full stop. And yes, I find the drawers and closets that need a realistic plan before exhaustion turns into rushed decisions. We

s just as valuable as the item — that

s the thing friends used to do.",

"The thing neighbors don

window.innerWidth

setMobile(window.innerWidth

"there has to be an easier way"

See the work

Ready to move on it?

Book 4-Hour Reset

Resale bag pickup

Same-day pickup or courier handoff available.

Schedule Pickup

Need to leave before everything is packed?

The Work

Start anywhere.

See All Services & Pricing

The Well Lived Citizen Co

Los Angeles, CA

© 2026 The Well Lived Citizen Co · Los Angeles, CA

--- ABOUT ---

https:

const CREDENTIALS = [

, textTransform:

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 64, alignItems:

}} className=

as const, top: 80 }}>

<img src={PHOTO} alt=

style={{ width:

, objectFit:

as const, objectPosition:

}}>{item}

))}

<Link href=

, textAlign:

s most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.</P>

<P>A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.</P>

<P>A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.</P>

<P>A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.</P>

<P>That instinct has followed me my entire life.</P>

<P>Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.</P>

<P>Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.</P>

<P>I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.</P>

<P>Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler

Meet Dayna

I have always been drawn to the life that lives inside people's most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.

A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.

A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.

A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.

That instinct has followed me my entire life.

Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.

Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.

I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.

Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler's scarves, I felt that same truth again: the profound human residue objects can hold.

I best understand my own attachment through moments of live music.

I remember recently feeling the same reverence I felt at that museum glass while watching Stevie Nicks pull her iconic capes from decades-old performances back onto the stage.

She said she had not seen some of them since the original songs were recorded, and that wearing them changed her for those few minutes.

I watched memory alter the way she moved, turned, and became the person from those moments again in real time.

That is the heart of this work.

Each of us has those items.

Those memories.

Those stories that are not on tape, in a notebook, or, worse, scattered across digital spaces where they can disappear into the constant shuffle of noise.

I do not believe people simply need help getting rid of things.

I believe they need help understanding what those things mean, what they are worth, what they still have left to do, and where the next chapter of those belongings belongs.

Sometimes that means preserving.

Sometimes it means cataloging, resale, or making sure a family story does not disappear into a donation pile.

The work is never really about the object.

It is about protecting the life it represents.

I came to understand the full weight of that truth in an entirely different way over the last year.

After an unforeseen flood, I found myself moving through 13 temporary homes and Airbnbs, carrying only fragments of the life I thought I would always recognize.

Years of belongings, valuables, and deeply personal objects were damaged or lost—many of them irreplaceable.

What surprised me most was not only the grief of the loss itself, but the disorientation of living without the things that quietly reflect you back to yourself each day.

The art you are used to seeing on your walls.

The clothes that belong in your closet.

The objects that make a place feel like the life you built.

When those things are suddenly gone—or when you watch them become drenched in water before you can do anything to save them—the experience is profoundly destabilizing.

Even for someone as deeply self-sufficient as I have always been.

I have spent my life moving independently, orchestrating complexity, leading across states, traveling constantly, and building systems that hold under pressure.

I have long been the person who can get anything done, anywhere, at any hour.

But this was different.

When it was my life, my loss, my dog beside me in a storage unit, and no clear sense yet of what the next version of home would be, I came face to face with something essential:

During that season, I was introduced to someone who, on paper, might have simply been called a home organizer.

But what she offered was something far deeper.

She stepped into the moments I could not hold alone.

The decisions I was too depleted to make.

The logistics I normally would have solved in seconds.

The emotional labor hidden inside every object, every box, every impossible next step.

She was not organizing.

She was relief.

She became calm in the middle of disruption, clarity in the middle of grief, and movement in a moment when everything in my life had stopped.

That experience changed the way I understand this work.

Because when it is your own life in pieces, even the most capable person can lose access to their usual clarity.

And in those moments, what matters most is not simply having someone who knows where things go.

It is having someone who can step into the emotional and operational weight of transition and quietly help carry it with you.

Over the years, this understanding has been reinforced in quieter ways, too.

A woman who once lived across the hall from me began as someone I simply greeted in passing at the call box or mailbox.

Over time, she became a close friend.

She is one of the most independent, self-sufficient, quietly powerful women I have ever known.

Even with family nearby, I found myself noticing something remarkable: people were naturally drawn to make life easier for her.

Not because she demanded it.

Not because she was incapable.

Simply because there was something about her presence that made others want to say, I can take care of that for you.

At 84, after hip surgery and countless chapters of life behind her, she kept moving forward—not because life had become easy, but because she met it with fullness, curiosity, and grace.

I found myself doing the same.

Setting up new televisions.

Making smart-home systems work seamlessly.

Adjusting thermostats.

Quietly removing friction so her life could remain as comfortable, elegant, and effortless as possible.

What stayed with me was not that she needed anyone.

It was the realization that everyone deserves to have that person.

The one who knows what to do.

The one who can make life easier.

The one who steps in before inconvenience becomes overwhelm, or before crisis turns into isolation.

Because not everyone has the network.

Not everyone knows who to call.

And sometimes disruption arrives suddenly, as it did for me.

What I have spent years doing instinctively—building systems, solving invisible problems, and creating custom solutions that make life move beautifully—has always come naturally.

What changed is understanding that these are not simply favors, talents, or professional strengths.

For the right person, in the right moment, they become essential care.

For more than 15 years, I have built my career creating environments that help people function beautifully in real life.

I have led large-scale operations, teams, and transformation initiatives for national brands, designing systems that solve invisible friction before it becomes visible failure.

That same philosophy now lives inside The Well Lived Citizen Co.

I bring together executive-level operational thinking, emotional discernment, resale and recoverable-value expertise, and a deep reverence for story, memory, and belonging.

I do not see homes as projects.

I see them as living systems shaped by identity, family, safety, and transition.

My role is to step into complexity with calm, create clarity around belongings, preserve what matters, recover hidden value, and build elegant systems that help people move forward without losing the story of how they got here.

That is what this business was built to do.

Background

Get in Touch

--- SERVICES & PRICING ---

door1

door2

door3

door4

flex-blocks

projects

, gap: 28, alignItems:

}} className=

Plain Text

```
{([[
```

, textTransform:

, border:

, flexDirection:

aria-label=

, gap: 16 }}>

{([[

as const }}>

{[

{ path:

, num:

, label:

},

{ path:

, textAlign:

as const, alignItems:

}}>

Plain Text

```
    { }
    { }
    { }
    <section id=
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 32, alignItems:

, marginBottom: 48 }} className=

,

]} />

<Body>The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What's included</SubHead>
      <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.
</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>$150/hr · 3 hr minimum</PricingLine>
        <PricingLine>$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom g
        <PricingLine>Project scopes are quoted separately.</PricingLine>
      </PricingBox>
      <Link href=
```

, justifyContent:

, alignItems:

price=

Plain Text

```
        Toilet paper, paper towels, basic utensils, water glasses, a wine or wh
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        Everything in Essentials, plus a starter dish set, dish soap, hamper, h
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        5 bins, 3 bin latches, and a rolling cart. Good for a single closet, pa
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        10 bins in mixed sizes, 6 bin latches, a rolling cart, 2 drawer divider
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        20 bins across multiple sizes, full latch set, rolling cart, 4 drawer d
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
    </section>

    <Divider />

    { }
    { }
    { }
    <section id=
```

,

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway. </Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
      <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up ov <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.</Body>

<Body>This service is the person who can see what is actually there.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What Legacy Planning holds</SubHead>
      <Body>The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as t
      <Body>This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps <Body>Possible outputs include:</Body>
      <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too — not for paperwork, but so that the next person who wears the fur coat, sets the table with the china, or lights the candle in the drawer has just enough of the mystery underneath to feel like they are living inside a second life, not just holding an object.</Body>

<Body>That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>How project timelines work</SubHead>
      <Body>Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a s <Body>A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with

      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>Single room or storage unit: $175/hr · 2 hr minimum</Prici
        <PricingLine>Whole home: project quote after walkthrough</PricingLine>
```

```
        </PricingBox>
        <Link href=
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Ways to use House Calls</SubHead>
        <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Real-Life Example</SubHead>
        <Body>The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds o <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.</Body>

<Body>That's House Calls.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Vendor & project oversight</SubHead>
        <Body>When needed, House Calls also covers:</Body> <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Service area</SubHead>
        <Body>LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route
```

```
        <Body>Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whe

        <PricingBox>
          <PricingLine>$175/hr · 2 hr minimum</PricingLine>
          <PricingLine>Retainer continuity available for repeat clients</PricingL <PricingLine>No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationsh
        </PricingBox>
        <Link href=
```

,

]} />

<Body>The work is not just listing. It includes:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

,

]} />

<Body>The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Easy handoff and pickup</SubHead>
        <Body>The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.</Body>

<Body>The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Intake bags and safe transport</SubHead>
        <Body>All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected
        { }
        <Body>When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly

        <SubHead>Item standards</SubHead>
        <Body>This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, don service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.</Body>
```

<Body>The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.</Body>

{ }

<Body>The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>Where items sell</SubHead>
<Body>Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for <Body>Current sales channels include:</Body>
<BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>Intake review timing</SubHead>
<Body>Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business
<Body>Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was receiv
<Body>If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline,

<SubHead>Realistic resale timeline</SubHead>
<Body>This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.</Body>
<Body>Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.</Body>
{ }
<Body>Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 mo <Body>The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If

<SubHead>The kind of judgment you are hiring</SubHead>
<Body>The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things.
<BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.</Body>

<Body>That is the work.</Body>

<Body>Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>Commission-based · agreement required</PricingLine>
      </PricingBox>
      <Link href=
```

I need a 4-hour you" kind of month

the far-and-few-between asks that are easier when time is already held

whole-home resets

packing and move days

larger catalogs

apartment landings

staged downsizing

multi-room continuity

family transition work

project-managed vendor sequences

/contact

background 0.2s

tel:3234331350

flex md:hidden

Call Dayna

currentColor

strokeLinecap=

strokeLinejoin=

Plain Text

```
      <path d=
```

Plus Jakarta Sans

re away",

"packing and move prep with or without you",

"closet and system continuity after landing",

]} />

<Body>The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.</Body>

```
Plain Text

        <SubHead>What
```

s a life change. Sometimes it

s a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"the divorced mom who moved into a condo and suddenly had to see, for the first time, how much had actually been accumulated over a marriage — and had to agree to how it all gets split",

"the person who lived in the same apartment for ten years and had no idea how much had quietly gathered in the back of every closet",

"the career change that revealed a hundred film industry cords, gear, and references in the garage — from a life that isn

s hands",

"the family carrying years of meaningful, valuable, or hard-to-sort volume that deserves clarity without pressure",

"the person who wants to decide what stays, what moves on, and what gets remembered — while they are the one making the decisions",

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn

t always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you

t share",

"the collection no one else in the house ever learned to see",

"the objects that deserve clarity before family stress builds",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

The Well Lived Citizen Co

Services & Pricing

The rest is usually built around that anyway.

Home Organization & Modern Move

The relief of the room.

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr • 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

Book a home org or move session

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

Clarity without fear.

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too — not for paperwork, but so that the next person who wears the fur coat, sets the table with the china, or lights the candle in the drawer has just enough of the mystery underneath to feel like they are living inside a second life, not just holding an object.

That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Start a legacy catalog or inventory project

House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls fills the missing person role in real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Book practical help for your home

Curated Resale & Consignment

Trust-forward thoughtful curation.

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me" service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Schedule the handoff for resale

Flex Blocks

Flex Blocks are 2, 4, or 6-hour reserved work blocks that can be used for focused task support, House Calls, continuity work, or the here-and-there things that build up between bigger projects.

They are ideal when you know support will come up, even if it doesn't need to happen all at once.

Best for:

The point is simple: your time is already there when life needs it.

Projects

Heavier work that needs straight-through momentum, multi-room lift, deeper decision-making, or full move support shifts into project pricing. Project scopes are quoted separately and not structured as blocked days as a starter.

Normal client stretches run in 2, 3, 4, 5, or at longest a 6-hour straight block. No single client is my only client in a day — resale work and client follow-up happen 7 days a week, and the schedule is built to keep all of it moving.

That includes:

Projects are quoted by scope, timeline, and intensity of lift.

Not Sure Where to Start?

Start with what is most real right now.

Most clients naturally move between these four services over time, and the work is designed to follow real life instead of forcing you into a rigid category.

Use the contact form to share what is sitting in your real moment, and we'll set up the most useful next step.

The Well Lived Citizen Co., a DBA of Well Dressed Citizen LLC

--- PRICING ---

1fr auto

, textTransform:

, gap: 24, alignItems:

}}>

<Link href=

, border:

, gridTemplateColumns:

, marginBottom: 16 }}>

<Row s=
/>

<Row s=

- C.linen, borderLeft:

  , gap: 12 }}>

  {[

  { price:

  , name:

  , items:

  },

  { price:

  }} />

  Plain Text

  ```
  { }
  <div style={{ position:
  ```

, marginBottom: 48, marginLeft: -40, marginRight: -40 }}>

<img

src=

A Los Angeles living room at golden hour — boxes, family photos, a pearl necklace, and a life in transition cover

center 30%

linear-gradient(to right, rgba(28,25,23,0.75) 0%, rgba(28,25,23,0.35) 60%, rgba(28,25,23,0.1) 100%)

#fff

Legacy Catalog

You do not need me to reorganize the home — you need me to walk through it with you or your family, hear the stories, photograph the pieces, open the bins nobody has looked at in years, and document what everything is and what it is worth. The output is a Legacy Catalog your family keeps. 20-30 hours typical.

From $3,500

Standard Elder Home Project

The full thing. Organization, safety check, declutter, removal of unwanted items, donation runs, resale pickups, home upgrades and repairs, tech and device setup, plus the finished Legacy Catalog. 40 hours average spread across 4-hour visits, including about 6 hours off-site for catalog creation and project coordination. If those hours are not fully used, they roll into other agreed work or the cost is reduced.

$7,000

Full Estate Project (60-80+ hours)

Larger homes, extensive collections, multiple locations, or complex situations that require extended time and specialized research.

Quoted after walkthrough

Family Distribution Plan

The storytelling piece — where you imagine where meaningful items would go. Not a will. Not legally binding. Lives inside the Legacy Catalog as your personal vision for what you hope happens. Typically 3-8 additional hours added to a Legacy Catalog engagement.

$175/hr

Estate Transition Support

When the family is ready to execute the plan. I come back with the catalog and handle it — what sells, what gets donated, what needs pickup, what still has a story left in it.

$175/hr + resale commission

Ongoing Legacy Retainer

Monthly check-ins, asset management, tech support, home reviews, donation pickups, resale continuation, ongoing downsizing work.

$500/month

Hourly (custom scoping)

For anything that does not fit neatly into a project. Every engagement starts with a free walkthrough and conversation.

special

Special Delivery Visit

Any combination of: smoke and CO detector check and replacement (10-year battery), replacing step stools with proper ladders, outlet and surge protector safety audit, swapping wall-switch bedroom lamps to outlet adapters with remotes so lights turn off from bed, battery and appliance review, phone and password setup, Wi-Fi setup and troubleshooting, streaming setup, emergency contacts configured and tested, replacing shower heads with detachable models, cable decluttering, cord and fire hazard audit, furniture stability check, auto-ship grocery setup. For out-of-state families: periodic sweeps with a written report back.

Clothing & Accessories

10-item minimum pickup. Zip bags provided. Nothing under $20 estimated value.

55 me / 45 you

Designer & High-Value ($300+)

Per item. I know what it is worth and which platform to sell it on.

Furniture ($150+ items)

Free local consultation. I list, manage the sale, coordinate buyer pickup.

Full Closet Liquidation (50+ items)

Volume project over 2-3 months. Monthly reporting.

Doorstep Pickup

Order the zip bags. Fill them. I pick up. No sorting needed — I identify what others miss.

Free

Monthly Payout

Report by the 1st. Venmo, Zelle, or check.

Paid by the 5th

Furniture assembly

IKEA, West Elm, CB2, Target, vintage

Included

Hands-on home improvements, shelf installation, hardware, fixtures

Electronics wipe and responsible recycling

Home readiness review

Included in Special Delivery and legacy engagements

Vendor coordination

Haulers, movers, deep clean, contractors — I manage the timeline

$150/hr

Referral coordination

Local vendors for services outside my scope — haulers, contractors, cleaners. Standalone.

$50

,
}}>Back to Home</button> </Link>
<a href=
, justifyContent:
, alignItems:
, flexWrap:
as const, gap: 12, borderTop:
Plus Jakarta Sans
A Well Lived Citizen
by Dayna Brown Home
Pricing
How I charge
Hourly
3-hour minimum. Single rooms, closets, one-day jobs.
Legacy & Special Delivery
3-hour minimum. All legacy planning and Special Delivery work.
Home Org Flex Block
$1,250 / 10 hrs
$125/hr • Save $250
$3,150 / 25 hrs
$126/hr • Save $600
Legacy & Special Delivery Flex Block
$1,500 / 10 hrs
$150/hr • Save $250
$3,650 / 25 hrs
$146/hr • Save $725
Home Organization
ADHD & Sensory-Sensitive Spaces
Guidance only. Not a clinical service.
Move-In Setup Bundles (optional)

Bundles are supply cost only. Labor is separate at hourly rate.

Legacy Planning & Catalog

Common next step:

Special Delivery

Home Readiness Bundle (optional • ~$150)

Supply cost is separate from hourly labor. Confirmed before purchase.

Curated Resale

Add-Ons

What I do and what I do not do

Ready to start?

Call or text (323) 433-1350. The first conversation is always free.

Back to Home

Call or Text

Well Kept. Well Placed. Well Lived.

Los Angeles, CA

© 2026 Dayna Brown. All rights reserved.

--- CONTACT ---

, textTransform:

- C.linen,
  outline:
  , boxSizing:
  as const,
  borderRadius: 0, WebkitAppearance:
  , flexWrap:
  , textAlign:
  , outline:
  , alignItems:
  ,
  userSelect:
  as const,
  }}>
  <input type=

```
    ,
    userSelect:
    as const,
    }}>
    <input type=
    }} />
    );
type FormState = {
clientType: string;
need: string;
urgent: string;
fullName: string;
email: string;
phone: string;
contactMethod: string;
whatIsHappening: string;
bestTime: string;
service: string;
rooms: string;
propertyType: string;
moveInvolved: string;
accessStyle: string;
urgentDeadline: string;
legacyScope: string;
itemTypes: string[];
timeline: string;
startingPoint: string;
buildingNotes: string;
parkingNotes: string;
pets: string;
keyHandoff: string;
preferredDays: string;
```

bestTimeWindows: string;
pickupItems: string[];
pickupDirection: string;
pickupTiming: string;
freeText: string;
lastService: string;
whatNow: string;
howFound: string;
_gotcha: string;
};
const EMPTY: FormState = {
clientType:
, need:
, urgent:
,
fullName:
, email:
, phone:
, contactMethod:
,
whatIsHappening:
, bestTime:
,
service:
, rooms:
, propertyType:
, moveInvolved:
, accessStyle:
,
urgentDeadline:
, legacyScope:
, itemTypes: [],

timeline:
, startingPoint:
,
buildingNotes:
, parkingNotes:
, pets:
, keyHandoff:
,
preferredDays:
, bestTimeWindows:
,
pickupItems: [], pickupDirection:
, pickupTiming:
,
freeText:
, lastService:
, whatNow:
,
howFound:
, _gotcha:
;
const isBook = form.need ===
;
const isPickup = form.need ===
;
const isNotSure = form.need ===
;
const isReturning = form.clientType ===
;
const needSelected = !!form.need;
const clientSelected = !!form.clientType;
const showOrgHouse = form.service ===

|| form.service ===

;

const showLegacy = form.service ===

;

const showResale = form.service ===

) return;

if (Array.isArray(v)) data.append(k, v.join(

));

else data.append(k, v as string);

});

const urgencyTag = form.urgent ===

;

const needLabel = isCall ?

: isBook ?

: isPickup ?

;

const clientTag = isReturning ?

;

data.append(

, `${urgencyTag}${clientTag}${needLabel} — ${form.fullName || }`);

data.append(

, form.email);

const res = await fetch(FORMSPREE_ENDPOINT, {

method:

,

headers: {

},

body: data,

});

setStatus(res.ok ?

);

} catch { setStatus(

, backdropFilter:

, borderBottom:

, justifyContent:

}}>

<Link href=

, gap: 24 }} className=

```
        {([[
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 48, alignItems:

}} className=

```
      { }
       {status ===
```

)[0]}.` :

: isPickup

?

}

<a href=

name=

}} tabIndex={-1} autoComplete=

}))}

options={[

{ value:

, label:

, sub:

},

{ value:

, v)}

options={[

{ value:

},

{ value:

},

]}

/>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                  <RadioGroup name=
```

options={[

required>

<input style={inputStyle} type= required placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

required>

<RadioGroup name=

, v)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {needSelected && isReturning && (isCall || isBook) && (
              <>
                <Divider />
                <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                  <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

placeholder=

Plain Text

```
                  <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize:
```

as const }}

placeholder=

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                {!isReturning && (
                  <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize:
```

as const }}

placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showOrgHouse && (
                    <>
                      <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                        <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

Plain Text

```
                        <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showLegacy && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showResale && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <CheckGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  <Field label=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                  <Field label=
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
                  <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <CheckGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {needSelected && isNotSure && (
                <>
                  <Divider />
                  <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                    <textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 120, resize:
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {needSelected && (
                <>
                  <Divider />
                  <Field label=
```

}

<a href=

}with your name in the subject line.

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {status ===
```

, border:

}}>

Something went wrong. Text directly at (323) 433-1350 or email dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com.

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {needSelected && (
                <button type=
```

disabled={status ===

,

width:

}

</button>

)}

Plain Text

```
          </form>
        )}

      { }
      <div style={{ position:
```

}}>

dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com

 <div style={{ borderTop:

style={{

position:

,

textDecoration:

, boxShadow:

height=

viewBox=

fill= stroke=

strokeWidth=

Plain Text

```
      <path d=
```

Plus Jakarta Sans

s going on?">

<textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize: "vertical" as const }}

placeholder="Two sentences is enough. What changed, what

s the real-life version?">

<textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 100, resize: "vertical" as const }}

placeholder="What changed, what

The Well Lived Citizen Co

by Dayna Brown

Get in Touch

Got it.

Direct Contact

Service Area

Response Time

--- SERVICE: HOME ORGANIZATION ---

side-by-side guided sessions

hybrid decision blocks

full key handoff

closet and system continuity after landing

intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it's an on-site, task-focused immediate dive in

layout logic

sourcing recommendations

setup and install

label systems

pre-order coordination

workflow tools and install basics

measuring tools

reusable sort bins

cord wraps, Velcro, adapters, and utility hardware

problem-solving tools that become necessary once the room opens up

Essentials Landing

$150

Start-Up Landing

$250

Full Landing Bundle

$500

Starter Org Bundle

Mid Org Bundle

Full Org Bundle

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

s included</SubHead>

<BulletList items={[

"intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it

m happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it

s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

01 — Home Organization & Modern Move

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr · 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: LEGACY ---

the divorced mom who moved into a condo and suddenly had to see, for the first time, how much had actually been accumulated over a marriage — and had to agree to how it all gets split

the person who lived in the same apartment for ten years and had no idea how much had quietly gathered in the back of every closet

the career change that revealed a hundred film industry cords, gear, and references in the garage — from a life that isn't the current one anymore

the household where someone is ready to take control of their own story before it falls into someone else's hands

the family carrying years of meaningful, valuable, or hard-to-sort volume that deserves clarity without pressure

the person who wants to decide what stays, what moves on, and what gets remembered — while they are the one making the decisions

the drawers

the backup bedding

the linen closets stacked with care

the vintage pieces with story

the everyday things with future value

the candles tucked away because the house was always tidy enough

the designer pieces in sizes the family doesn't share

the collection no one else in the house ever learned to see

the objects that deserve clarity before family stress builds

digital inventory

photo documentation

room-by-room item notes

family distribution references

sentiment and story preservation

resale-ready routing notes

donation pathways

second-home and storage references

transition roadmap

printable copies

bound family binders

duplicate family copies

digital or web-based workflows

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

s a move. Sometimes it

t the current one anymore",

"the household where someone is ready to take control of their own story before it falls into someone else

t mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn re comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.</Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
<Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over <BulletList items={[
  "the drawers",
  "the backup bedding",
  "the linen closets stacked with care",
  "the vintage pieces with story",
  "the everyday things with future value",
  "the candles tucked away because the house was always tidy enough",
  "the designer pieces in sizes the family doesn
```

s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

02 — Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too. That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: HOUSE CALLS ---

newly divorced

recently widowed

first time living alone

partner travels constantly

adult children supporting from another city

practical aftermath no one stays to help with

moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen

one-time practical resets

weekly support

monthly continuity
seasonal resets
remote family check-ins
post-project upkeep
vendor days
donation and return routing
home re-entry after travel
guest and event resets
the 4-hour practical reset
unwrap and sort everything
organize by month / size / first-use timeline
separate immediate essentials
identify duplicates
create return and resale routes
donate what will never realistically be used
clear packaging and gift-wrap chaos
order thank-you cards
export addresses to print
reset the room so it actually works for day one movers haulers cleaners
installers
contractors
storage teams
donation pickups
resale buyer coordination
shipping and courier
building and concierge protocol
service appointment access
rgba(245,240,232,0.65)
/contact

/services

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

03 — House Calls

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls fills the missing person role in real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

This is for:

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Get in Touch

All Services

--- SERVICE: CURATED RESALE ---

clothing

designer accessories

jewelry

home decor

furniture

art

rare textiles

story-rich vintage

one-of-a-kind pieces with real buyer demand

pickup

intake

evaluation

photography

platform matching

buyer communication

routing

return logic

donation reroute when appropriate

monthly reporting and payout rhythm

city pickup

route-based stop-ins

Uber Business courier

building desk drop

UPS Access Point

direct bag shipment

handoff during another project block

please get rid of this for me

Poshmark (Poshmark Ambassador — badge coming to profile soon)

eBay (new business profile, credible reviews building)

Etsy

Facebook Marketplace

Chairish

Vinted

Vestiaire

Grailed

vetted local high-end resale

future hosted client sales through the site

what deserves effort

what should wait

what gains value with story

what belongs in the collector world

what should be held for better timing

what needs to leave fast

what is better donated

what has emotional meaning worth preserving in the listing

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

re hoping for. We

Pricing

04 — Curated Resale & Consignment

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me"

service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Get in Touch

All Services

==========

CHECKPOINT 1 — Homepage flow rebuilt

--- HOME ---

https:

const NAV_LINKS: [string, string][] = [

[

],

];

const FOOTER_LINKS: [string, string][] = [

[

],

];

interface ServiceCard {

num: string;

href: string;

title: string;

body: string[];

note?: string;

prices: string[];

cta: string;

}

const SERVICE_CARDS: ServiceCard[] = [

{

num:

,

href:

,
title:
,
body: [
,
],
note:
,
prices: [
],
cta:
,
},
{
num:
but I love this" and "what if I need it."

Sometimes a piece has a story worth keeping with it. When those worlds collide and I can preserve a history, a moment, give it a new life to someone who knows that's just as valuable as the item — that's why I love this piece of my business. It brings the story back to connection at its core. When that matters, I document that too.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2hr min

Whole home: project pricing after walkthrough

See how inventory and legacy support works →

/services/house-calls

House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

That's the thing friends used to do.

The thing neighbors don't always exist for anymore.

The thing adult children need when they're in another city.

Once I know how your home works, it becomes easy for me to help keep it working — home check-ins, tech setup, hands-on home improvements, donation drop-offs, and the practical loose ends that make everyday life easier when someone trusted is paying attention.

$175/hr · 2hr min

Book practical help for your home →

/services/resale

Curated Resale & Consignment

Is it cool? Is it sellable? Will they even take it?

This is for clothing, designer bags, jewelry, and the pieces you know might still have value but do not want to spend hours platform-matching, measuring, negotiating, and managing yourself.

With an established luxury and resale background, I go through it piece by piece, decide what is worth the effort, and match each item to the platform where it makes the most sense. Clean, non-sellable items can be responsibly donated as part of the process.

You fill the waterproof bag, sign the agreement, and I handle the rest — pickup, styling, measurements, listing, buyer questions, returns, monthly check-ins, and payout on the agreed split.

Commission-based · agreement included

Schedule the handoff for resale →

rgba(154,91,60,0.07)

rgba(154,91,60,0.08)

background 0.2s

rgba(154,91,60,0.15)

resize

translateY(0)

opacity 0.8s ease, transform 0.8s ease

border-color 0.3s

, gap: 28, alignItems:

}} className=

, textTransform:

, border:

, flexDirection:

aria-label=

}}>{label}

</Link>

))}

)}

</nav>

Plain Text

```
  { }
  <section id=
```

,

gridTemplateColumns: isMobile ?

,

width:

,

}}>

{ }

{isMobile && (

<div style={{

backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})` ,

backgroundSize:

,

backgroundPosition:

,

height: Math.round(window.innerWidth * 0.56),

width:

, justifyContent:

,

animation:

}}>

When <em style={{ fontStyle:

, animation:

, animationDelay:

}}>

Welcome to the concierge for the things you don't want to handle.

<Link href=

)}

>See the work

</Link>

Plain Text

```
{ }
{!isMobile && (
  <div style={{
    backgroundImage: `url(${HERO_IMG})`,
    backgroundSize:
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 24, marginBottom: 32 }} className=

, width:

, ...fi(

}}>

<div className=

, gap: 80, alignItems:

}}>

Not sure where to start? <em style={{ fontStyle:

, marginBottom: 28 }}>

No pressure. The whole point is to make your life easier to navigate from here.

<Link href=

, alignItems:

Plus Jakarta Sans

s no longer a dinner service and not sellable as incomplete. The everyday things that still carry use, meaning, or resale value while someone is still living in the home.",

"I help find the gaps inside real household life — what still serves daily use, what deserves documentation or proper appraisal, and what we forgot was even in there. I focus on what can create value now — full stop. And yes, I find the drawers and closets that need a realistic plan before exhaustion turns into rushed decisions. We

s just as valuable as the item — that
s the thing friends used to do.",
"The thing neighbors don
window.innerWidth
setMobile(window.innerWidth
"there has to be an easier way"
See the work
Need the relief now?
Book 4-Hour Reset
Resale bag pickup
Same-day pickup or courier handoff available.
Schedule Pickup
Need to leave before everything is packed?
The Work
Start anywhere.
See All Services & Pricing
The Well Lived Citizen Co
Los Angeles, CA
© 2026 The Well Lived Citizen Co · Los Angeles, CA
--- ABOUT ---
https:
const CREDENTIALS = [
, textTransform:
, gridTemplateColumns:
, gap: 64, alignItems:
}} className=
as const, top: 80 }}>
 <img src={PHOTO} alt=
style={{ width:
, objectFit:
as const, objectPosition:

}}>{item}

))}

<Link href=

, textAlign:

s most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.</P>

<P>A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.</P>

<P>A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.</P>

<P>A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.</P>

<P>That instinct has followed me my entire life.</P>

<P>Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.</P>

<P>Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.</P>

<P>I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.</P>

<P>Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler

Meet Dayna

I have always been drawn to the life that lives inside people's most treasured possessions—the objects around which identity is formed, whether subtly or boldly.

A jacket is never just clothing when it carries the memory of the woman who wore it and the nights she spent wrapped in it beside the love of her life.

A record is never just vinyl when it still holds the rebellion, risk, and moment that brought it into the world—an era in which music helped bring authority to its knees.

A closed closet door is never simply storage when it still tells the story of a marriage, a career, a season of confidence, or the person someone once was.

That instinct has followed me my entire life.

Creating the time, space, and experience for people to discover the belongings that will become part of their own story has always felt deeply important to me.

Some of my earliest memories are of sitting on the floor with records spread around me, replaying Lionel Richie, Billy Joel, and Aerosmith until the stories behind the music felt as important as the songs themselves.

I always felt the lyrics were telling stories so personal that I wanted to know the people behind them. The mystery of the music—and the lives we could not hear through the turntable—always felt like part of the journey.

Years later, standing in Seattle and looking through museum glass at Steven Tyler's scarves, I felt that same truth again: the profound human residue objects can hold.

I best understand my own attachment through moments of live music.

I remember recently feeling the same reverence I felt at that museum glass while watching Stevie Nicks pull her iconic capes from decades-old performances back onto the stage.

She said she had not seen some of them since the original songs were recorded, and that wearing them changed her for those few minutes.

I watched memory alter the way she moved, turned, and became the person from those moments again in real time.

That is the heart of this work.

Each of us has those items.

Those memories.

Those stories that are not on tape, in a notebook, or, worse, scattered across digital spaces where they can disappear into the constant shuffle of noise.

I do not believe people simply need help getting rid of things.

I believe they need help understanding what those things mean, what they are worth, what they still have left to do, and where the next chapter of those belongings belongs.

Sometimes that means preserving.

Sometimes it means cataloging, resale, or making sure a family story does not disappear into a donation pile.

The work is never really about the object.

It is about protecting the life it represents.

I came to understand the full weight of that truth in an entirely different way over the last year.

After an unforeseen flood, I found myself moving through 13 temporary homes and Airbnbs, carrying only fragments of the life I thought I would always recognize.

Years of belongings, valuables, and deeply personal objects were damaged or lost—many of them irreplaceable.

What surprised me most was not only the grief of the loss itself, but the disorientation of living without the things that quietly reflect you back to yourself each day.

The art you are used to seeing on your walls.

The clothes that belong in your closet.

The objects that make a place feel like the life you built.

When those things are suddenly gone—or when you watch them become drenched in water before you can do anything to save them—the experience is profoundly destabilizing.

Even for someone as deeply self-sufficient as I have always been.

I have spent my life moving independently, orchestrating complexity, leading across states, traveling constantly, and building systems that hold under pressure.

I have long been the person who can get anything done, anywhere, at any hour.

But this was different.

When it was my life, my loss, my dog beside me in a storage unit, and no clear sense yet of what the next version of home would be, I came face to face with something essential:

During that season, I was introduced to someone who, on paper, might have simply been called a home organizer.

But what she offered was something far deeper.

She stepped into the moments I could not hold alone.

The decisions I was too depleted to make.

The logistics I normally would have solved in seconds.

The emotional labor hidden inside every object, every box, every impossible next step.

She was not organizing.

She was relief.

She became calm in the middle of disruption, clarity in the middle of grief, and movement in a moment when everything in my life had stopped.

That experience changed the way I understand this work.

Because when it is your own life in pieces, even the most capable person can lose access to their usual clarity.

And in those moments, what matters most is not simply having someone who knows where things go.

It is having someone who can step into the emotional and operational weight of transition and quietly help carry it with you.

Over the years, this understanding has been reinforced in quieter ways, too.

A woman who once lived across the hall from me began as someone I simply greeted in passing at the call box or mailbox.

Over time, she became a close friend.

She is one of the most independent, self-sufficient, quietly powerful women I have ever known.

Even with family nearby, I found myself noticing something remarkable: people were naturally drawn to make life easier for her.

Not because she demanded it.

Not because she was incapable.

Simply because there was something about her presence that made others want to say, I can take care of that for you.

At 84, after hip surgery and countless chapters of life behind her, she kept moving forward—not because life had become easy, but because she met it with fullness, curiosity, and grace.

I found myself doing the same.

Setting up new televisions.

Making smart-home systems work seamlessly.

Adjusting thermostats.

Quietly removing friction so her life could remain as comfortable, elegant, and effortless as possible.

What stayed with me was not that she needed anyone.

It was the realization that everyone deserves to have that person.

The one who knows what to do.

The one who can make life easier.

The one who steps in before inconvenience becomes overwhelm, or before crisis turns into isolation.

Because not everyone has the network.

Not everyone knows who to call.

And sometimes disruption arrives suddenly, as it did for me.

What I have spent years doing instinctively—building systems, solving invisible problems, and creating custom solutions that make life move beautifully—has always come naturally.

What changed is understanding that these are not simply favors, talents, or professional strengths.

For the right person, in the right moment, they become essential care.

For more than 15 years, I have built my career creating environments that help people function beautifully in real life.

I have led large-scale operations, teams, and transformation initiatives for national brands, designing systems that solve invisible friction before it becomes visible failure.

That same philosophy now lives inside The Well Lived Citizen Co.

I bring together executive-level operational thinking, emotional discernment, resale and recoverable-value expertise, and a deep reverence for story, memory, and belonging.

I do not see homes as projects.

I see them as living systems shaped by identity, family, safety, and transition.

My role is to step into complexity with calm, create clarity around belongings, preserve what matters, recover hidden value, and build elegant systems that help people move forward without losing the story of how they got here.

That is what this business was built to do.

Background

Get in Touch

--- SERVICES & PRICING ---

door1

door2

door3

door4

flex-blocks

projects

, gap: 28, alignItems:

}} className=

Plain Text

```
{([[
```

, textTransform:

, border:

, flexDirection:

aria-label=

, gap: 16 }}>

{([[

as const }}>

{[

{ path:

, num:

, label:

},

{ path:

, textAlign:

as const, alignItems:

}}>

Plain Text

```
    { }
    { }
    { }
    <section id=
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 32, alignItems:

, marginBottom: 48 }} className=

,

]} />

<Body>The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What's included</SubHead>
      <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.
</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>$150/hr · 3 hr minimum</PricingLine>
        <PricingLine>$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom g
        <PricingLine>Project scopes are quoted separately.</PricingLine>
      </PricingBox>
      <Link href=
```

, justifyContent:

, alignItems:

price=

Plain Text

```
        Toilet paper, paper towels, basic utensils, water glasses, a wine or wh
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        Everything in Essentials, plus a starter dish set, dish soap, hamper, h
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        5 bins, 3 bin latches, and a rolling cart. Good for a single closet, pa
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        10 bins in mixed sizes, 6 bin latches, a rolling cart, 2 drawer divider
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
      <AddOnCard title=
```

Plain Text

```
        20 bins across multiple sizes, full latch set, rolling cart, 4 drawer d
```

Plain Text

```
      </AddOnCard>
    </section>

    <Divider />

    { }
    { }
    { }
    <section id=
```

,

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway. </Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
      <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up ov <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.</Body>

<Body>This service is the person who can see what is actually there.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>What Legacy Planning holds</SubHead>
      <Body>The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as t
      <Body>This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps <Body>Possible outputs include:</Body>
      <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too — not for paperwork, but so that the next person who wears the fur coat, sets the table with the china, or lights the candle in the drawer has just enough of the mystery underneath to feel like they are living inside a second life, not just holding an object.</Body>

<Body>That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <SubHead>How project timelines work</SubHead>
      <Body>Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a s <Body>A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with

      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>Single room or storage unit: $175/hr · 2 hr minimum</Prici
        <PricingLine>Whole home: project quote after walkthrough</PricingLine>
```

```
        </PricingBox>
        <Link href=
```

,

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Ways to use House Calls</SubHead>
        <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Real-Life Example</SubHead>
        <Body>The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds o <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.</Body>

<Body>That's House Calls.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Vendor & project oversight</SubHead>
        <Body>When needed, House Calls also covers:</Body> <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Service area</SubHead>
        <Body>LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route
```

```
        <Body>Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whe

        <PricingBox>
          <PricingLine>$175/hr · 2 hr minimum</PricingLine>
          <PricingLine>Retainer continuity available for repeat clients</PricingL <PricingLine>No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationsh
        </PricingBox>
        <Link href=
```

,

]} />

<Body>The work is not just listing. It includes:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

,

]} />

<Body>The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Easy handoff and pickup</SubHead>
        <Body>The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most <BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.</Body>

<Body>The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.</Body>

Plain Text

```
        <SubHead>Intake bags and safe transport</SubHead>
        <Body>All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected
        { }
        <Body>When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly

        <SubHead>Item standards</SubHead>
        <Body>This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, don service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.</Body>
```

<Body>The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.</Body>

{ }

<Body>The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>Where items sell</SubHead>
<Body>Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for <Body>Current sales channels include:</Body>
<BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.</Body>

Plain Text

```
<SubHead>Intake review timing</SubHead>
<Body>Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business
<Body>Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was receiv
<Body>If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline,

<SubHead>Realistic resale timeline</SubHead>
<Body>This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.</Body>
<Body>Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.</Body>
{ }
<Body>Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 mo <Body>The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If

<SubHead>The kind of judgment you are hiring</SubHead>
<Body>The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things.
<BulletList items={[
```

,

]} />

<Body>The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.</Body>

<Body>That is the work.</Body>

<Body>Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.</Body>

Plain Text

```
      <PricingBox>
        <PricingLine>Commission-based · agreement required</PricingLine>
      </PricingBox>
      <Link href=
```

I need a 4-hour you" kind of month

the far-and-few-between asks that are easier when time is already held

whole-home resets

packing and move days

larger catalogs

apartment landings

staged downsizing

multi-room continuity

family transition work

project-managed vendor sequences

/contact

background 0.2s

tel:3234331350

flex md:hidden

Call Dayna

currentColor

strokeLinecap=

strokeLinejoin=

Plain Text

```
      <path d=
```

Plus Jakarta Sans

re away",

"packing and move prep with or without you",

"closet and system continuity after landing",

]} />

<Body>The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.</Body>

```
Plain Text

        <SubHead>What
```

s a life change. Sometimes it

s a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"the divorced mom who moved into a condo and suddenly had to see, for the first time, how much had actually been accumulated over a marriage — and had to agree to how it all gets split",

"the person who lived in the same apartment for ten years and had no idea how much had quietly gathered in the back of every closet",

"the career change that revealed a hundred film industry cords, gear, and references in the garage — from a life that isn

s hands",

"the family carrying years of meaningful, valuable, or hard-to-sort volume that deserves clarity without pressure",

"the person who wants to decide what stays, what moves on, and what gets remembered — while they are the one making the decisions",

]} />

<Body>Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn

t always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you

t share",

"the collection no one else in the house ever learned to see",

"the objects that deserve clarity before family stress builds",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes the people who love you don

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

The Well Lived Citizen Co

Services & Pricing

The rest is usually built around that anyway.

Home Organization & Modern Move

The relief of the room.

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr • 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

Book a home org or move session

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

Clarity without fear.

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it. You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too — not for paperwork, but so that the next person who wears the fur coat, sets the table with the china, or lights the candle in the drawer has just enough of the mystery underneath to feel like they are living inside a second life, not just holding an object.

That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Start a legacy catalog or inventory project

House Calls

For the things life leaves unfinished.

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls is the relief of having the missing person role built back into real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Book practical help for your home

Curated Resale & Consignment

Trust-forward thoughtful curation.

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me" service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Schedule the handoff for resale

Flex Blocks

Flex Blocks are 2, 4, or 6-hour reserved work blocks that can be used for focused task support, House Calls, continuity work, or the here-and-there things that build up between bigger projects.

They are ideal when you know support will come up, even if it doesn't need to happen all at once.

Best for:

The point is simple: your time is already there when life needs it.

Projects

Heavier work that needs straight-through momentum, multi-room lift, deeper decision-making, or full move support shifts into project pricing. Project scopes are quoted separately and not structured as blocked days as a starter.

Normal client stretches run in 2, 3, 4, 5, or at longest a 6-hour straight block. No single client is my only client in a day — resale work and client follow-up happen 7 days a week, and the schedule is built to keep all of it moving.

That includes:

Projects are quoted by scope, timeline, and intensity of lift.

Not Sure Where to Start?

Start with what is most real right now.

Most clients naturally move between these four services over time, and the work is designed to follow real life instead of forcing you into a rigid category.

Use the contact form to share what is sitting in your real moment, and we'll set up the most useful next step.

The Well Lived Citizen Co., a DBA of Well Dressed Citizen LLC

--- PRICING ---

1fr auto

, textTransform:

, gap: 24, alignItems:

}}>

<Link href=

, border:

, gridTemplateColumns:

, marginBottom: 16 }}>

<Row s=
/>

<Row s=

- C.linen, borderLeft:

  , gap: 12 }}>

  {[

  { price:

  , name:

  , items:

  },

  { price:

  }} />

  Plain Text

  ```
  { }
  <div style={{ position:
  ```

, marginBottom: 48, marginLeft: -40, marginRight: -40 }}>

<img

src=

A Los Angeles living room at golden hour — boxes, family photos, a pearl necklace, and a life in transition cover

center 30%

linear-gradient(to right, rgba(28,25,23,0.75) 0%, rgba(28,25,23,0.35) 60%, rgba(28,25,23,0.1) 100%)

#fff

Legacy Catalog

You do not need me to reorganize the home — you need me to walk through it with you or your family, hear the stories, photograph the pieces, open the bins nobody has looked at in years, and document what everything is and what it is worth. The output is a Legacy Catalog your family keeps. 20-30 hours typical.

From $3,500

Standard Elder Home Project

The full thing. Organization, safety check, declutter, removal of unwanted items, donation runs, resale pickups, home upgrades and repairs, tech and device setup, plus the finished Legacy Catalog. 40 hours average spread across 4-hour visits, including about 6 hours off-site for catalog creation and project coordination. If those hours are not fully used, they roll into other agreed work or the cost is reduced.

$7,000

Full Estate Project (60-80+ hours)

Larger homes, extensive collections, multiple locations, or complex situations that require extended time and specialized research.

Quoted after walkthrough

Family Distribution Plan

The storytelling piece — where you imagine where meaningful items would go. Not a will. Not legally binding. Lives inside the Legacy Catalog as your personal vision for what you hope happens. Typically 3-8 additional hours added to a Legacy Catalog engagement.

$175/hr

Estate Transition Support

When the family is ready to execute the plan. I come back with the catalog and handle it — what sells, what gets donated, what needs pickup, what still has a story left in it.

$175/hr + resale commission

Ongoing Legacy Retainer

Monthly check-ins, asset management, tech support, home reviews, donation pickups, resale continuation, ongoing downsizing work.

$500/month

Hourly (custom scoping)

For anything that does not fit neatly into a project. Every engagement starts with a free walkthrough and conversation.

special

Special Delivery Visit

Any combination of: smoke and CO detector check and replacement (10-year battery), replacing step stools with proper ladders, outlet and surge protector safety audit, swapping wall-switch bedroom lamps to outlet adapters with remotes so lights turn off from bed, battery and appliance review, phone and password setup, Wi-Fi setup and troubleshooting, streaming setup, emergency contacts configured and tested, replacing shower heads with detachable models, cable decluttering, cord and fire hazard audit, furniture stability check, auto-ship grocery setup. For out-of-state families: periodic sweeps with a written report back.

Clothing & Accessories

10-item minimum pickup. Zip bags provided. Nothing under $20 estimated value.

55 me / 45 you

Designer & High-Value ($300+)

Per item. I know what it is worth and which platform to sell it on.

Furniture ($150+ items)

Free local consultation. I list, manage the sale, coordinate buyer pickup.

Full Closet Liquidation (50+ items)

Volume project over 2-3 months. Monthly reporting.

Doorstep Pickup

Order the zip bags. Fill them. I pick up. No sorting needed — I identify what others miss.

Free

Monthly Payout

Report by the 1st. Venmo, Zelle, or check.

Paid by the 5th

Furniture assembly

IKEA, West Elm, CB2, Target, vintage

Included

Hands-on home improvements, shelf installation, hardware, fixtures

Electronics wipe and responsible recycling

Home readiness review

Included in Special Delivery and legacy engagements

Vendor coordination

Haulers, movers, deep clean, contractors — I manage the timeline

$150/hr

Referral coordination

Local vendors for services outside my scope — haulers, contractors, cleaners. Standalone.

$50

,
}}>Back to Home</button> </Link>
<a href=
, justifyContent:
, alignItems:
, flexWrap:
as const, gap: 12, borderTop:
Plus Jakarta Sans
A Well Lived Citizen
by Dayna Brown Home
Pricing
How I charge
Hourly
3-hour minimum. Single rooms, closets, one-day jobs.
Legacy & Special Delivery
3-hour minimum. All legacy planning and Special Delivery work.
Home Org Flex Block
$1,250 / 10 hrs
$125/hr • Save $250
$3,150 / 25 hrs
$126/hr • Save $600
Legacy & Special Delivery Flex Block
$1,500 / 10 hrs
$150/hr • Save $250
$3,650 / 25 hrs
$146/hr • Save $725
Home Organization
ADHD & Sensory-Sensitive Spaces
Guidance only. Not a clinical service.
Move-In Setup Bundles (optional)

Bundles are supply cost only. Labor is separate at hourly rate.

Legacy Planning & Catalog

Common next step:

Special Delivery

Home Readiness Bundle (optional · ~$150)

Supply cost is separate from hourly labor. Confirmed before purchase.

Curated Resale

Add-Ons

What I do and what I do not do

Ready to start?

Call or text (323) 433-1350. The first conversation is always free.

Back to Home

Call or Text

Well Kept. Well Placed. Well Lived.

Los Angeles, CA

© 2026 Dayna Brown. All rights reserved.

--- CONTACT ---

, textTransform:

- C.linen,
  outline:
  , boxSizing:
  as const,
  borderRadius: 0, WebkitAppearance:
  , alignItems:
  , flexWrap:
  ,
  userSelect:
  as const,
  }}>
  <input type=

```
      ,
      userSelect:
      as const,
      }}>
      <input type=
      }}
          />
      {opt} </label> ))}
      );
};
type FormState = {
fullName: string;
email: string;
phone: string;
contactMethod: string;
service: string;
realLife: string;
rooms: string;
propertyType: string;
moveInvolved: string;
accessStyle: string;
urgentDeadline: string;
legacyScope: string;
itemTypes: string[];
timeline: string;
startingPoint: string;
buildingNotes: string;
parkingNotes: string;
pets: string;
```

keyHandoff: string;
preferredDays: string;
bestTimeWindows: string;
howFound: string;
_gotcha: string;
};
const EMPTY: FormState = {
fullName:
, email:
, phone:
, contactMethod:
,
service:
, realLife:
,
rooms:
, propertyType:
, moveInvolved:
, accessStyle:
, urgentDeadline:
,
legacyScope:
, itemTypes: [],
timeline:
, startingPoint:
,
buildingNotes:
, parkingNotes:
, pets:
, keyHandoff:
, preferredDays:
, bestTimeWindows:

,
howFound:
, _gotcha:
|| form.service ===
;
const showLegacy = form.service ===
;
const showResale = form.service ===
) return;
if (Array.isArray(v)) { data.append(k, v.join(
));
} else {
data.append(k, v as string);
}
});
data.append(
, `New Inquiry — ${form.service || } — ${form.fullName || }`);
data.append(
, form.email);
const res = await fetch(FORMSPREE_ENDPOINT, { method:
,
headers: {
},
body: data,
});
setStatus(res.ok ?
);
} catch { setStatus(
, backdropFilter:

, borderBottom:

, justifyContent:

}}>

<Link href=

, gap: 24 }} className=

Plain Text

```
          {([[
```

, gridTemplateColumns:

, gap: 48, alignItems:

}} className=

Plain Text

```
        { }
         {status ===
```

)[0]}.` :

}

<a href= name=

}}

tabIndex={-1}

autoComplete=

/>

Plain Text

```
              { }
              <SectionHead num=
```

label=

/>

Plain Text

```
            <Field label=
```

required>

<input style={inputStyle} type=

required

placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
            <Field label=
```

required>

<RadioGroup

name=

options={[

, v)}

/>

</Field>

Plain Text

```
            { }
            <SectionHead num=
```

required>

<textarea style={{ ...inputStyle, minHeight: 120, resize:

as const }}

required

placeholder=

, e.target.value)}

/>

</Field>

Plain Text

```
            { }
            {(showOrgHouse || showLegacy || showResale) && (
              <>
                <SectionHead num=
```

/>

Plain Text

```
                {showOrgHouse && (
                  <>
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

placeholder=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

Plain Text

```
                      <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showLegacy && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

Plain Text

```
                  {showResale && (
                    <Field label=
```

Plain Text

```
                      <CheckGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

)}

</>

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              <SectionHead num=
```

Plain Text

```
                <RadioGroup name=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
            { }
            <SectionHead num=
```

Plain Text

```
                <input style={inputStyle} type=
```

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, v)} />

</Field>

<Field label=

, e.target.value)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
            { }
            <SectionHead num=
```

}

<a href=

}and include your name in the subject line.

Plain Text

```
              { }
              <SectionHead num=
```

, v)} />

</Field>

Plain Text

```
              { }
              {status ===
```

, border:

}}>

Something went wrong. Text directly at (323) 433-1350 or email dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com.

)}

Plain Text

```
              { }
              <button type=
```

disabled={status ===

,

width:

as const }}>

Or text directly:{

, flexDirection:

as const, marginBottom: 6 }}>Text or call

<a href=

as const, marginBottom: 6 }}>Email

<a href=

}}>A Well Lived Citizen Co., a DBA of Well Dressed Citizen LLC

Plain Text

```
  { }
  <a href=
```

style={{

position:

,

boxShadow:

,

textDecoration:

,

}}

className=

aria-label=

height=

viewBox=

fill= stroke=

strokeWidth=

strokeLinecap=

strokeLinejoin=

Plain Text

```
      <path d=
```

Plus Jakarta Sans

s the real-life version?" />

Plain Text

```
            <Field label="Tell me what
```

The Well Lived Citizen Co

by Dayna Brown

Start Here — Inquiry Form

Got it.

dayna@thewelllivedcitizenco.com

Reach out directly

Text or call

Email

What to expect

A Well Lived Citizen Co., a DBA of Well Dressed Citizen LLC

--- SERVICE: HOME ORGANIZATION ---

side-by-side guided sessions

hybrid decision blocks

full key handoff

closet and system continuity after landing

intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it's an on-site, task-focused immediate dive in

layout logic

sourcing recommendations

setup and install

label systems

pre-order coordination

workflow tools and install basics

measuring tools

reusable sort bins

cord wraps, Velcro, adapters, and utility hardware

problem-solving tools that become necessary once the room opens up

Essentials Landing

$150

Start-Up Landing

$250

Full Landing Bundle

$500

Starter Org Bundle

Mid Org Bundle

Full Org Bundle

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

/services/legacy

s included</SubHead>

<BulletList items={[

"intake call, prior coordination, and any pre-planning on my end if needed — depending on what information is required, or whether it

m happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it

s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

01 — Home Organization & Modern Move

Your home, made to work for how you actually live.

For the room that keeps collecting piles, the move that technically happened but never settled, the closet that no longer fits your life, or the spaces where everyday friction quietly steals time.

The issue here is the space itself. The room, layout, volume, or systems are no longer supporting the way you naturally move through your day.

I come in, find the friction, and make the space work around your real habits.

How we can work together

Projects can be:

The right style is the one that creates the easiest lasting outcome.

What's included

For deeper spaces like closets, offices, storage rooms, and linen systems, product support is quoted after walkthrough based on hidden volume and actual dimensions.

$150/hr · 3 hr minimum

$1,200 flat day rate — reserved for studio and 1-bedroom get-it-done-fast moves, up to 8 hours straight. The flat rate exists because these smaller footprints can realistically be packed, landed, or reset in a single uninterrupted day. Larger homes scope as projects.

Project scopes are quoted separately.

A Note on Labels

Labels are always included — handwritten on-site by default, and printed sets provided for larger project scopes.

For efficiency, printed labels are usually handled as office work rather than billed hourly. I notate during the session, build the label set in my own app on my own time, print them, and bring them back to apply on the next visit or at the end of a multi-session project. This saves real money on hourly time that would otherwise be spent typing, cutting, and feeding a label maker in the middle of active organizing work.

If you want fully printed labels applied the same day, I'm happy to bring the label maker on-site — just let me know during intake so it's built into the time estimate.

Add-Ons & Landing Support

First-Night & First-Week Supply Bundles

Optional product budgets added to any move session or day rate so the home works before the first Target run.

Pre-Buy Org Bundles

Optional product budgets for clients who want to front-load organizing supplies into the session.

Bundles below are examples — actual item mix is adjusted based on intake and dialogue to fit the specific room or project. Any item can be swapped for another of equal value.

Get in Touch

All Services

← All Services

Next: Legacy Planning →

--- SERVICE: LEGACY ---

the divorced mom who moved into a condo and suddenly had to see, for the first time, how much had actually been accumulated over a marriage — and had to agree to how it all gets split

the person who lived in the same apartment for ten years and had no idea how much had quietly gathered in the back of every closet

the career change that revealed a hundred film industry cords, gear, and references in the garage — from a life that isn't the current one anymore

the household where someone is ready to take control of their own story before it falls into someone else's hands

the family carrying years of meaningful, valuable, or hard-to-sort volume that deserves clarity without pressure

the person who wants to decide what stays, what moves on, and what gets remembered — while they are the one making the decisions

the drawers

the backup bedding

the linen closets stacked with care

the vintage pieces with story

the everyday things with future value

the candles tucked away because the house was always tidy enough

the designer pieces in sizes the family doesn't share

the collection no one else in the house ever learned to see

the objects that deserve clarity before family stress builds

digital inventory

photo documentation

room-by-room item notes

family distribution references

sentiment and story preservation

resale-ready routing notes

donation pathways

second-home and storage references

transition roadmap

printable copies

bound family binders

duplicate family copies

digital or web-based workflows

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

/services/home-organization

/services/house-calls

s a move. Sometimes it

t the current one anymore",

"the household where someone is ready to take control of their own story before it falls into someone else

t mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn re comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.</Body>

<Body>This work exists for that exact in-between.</Body>

Plain Text

```
    <SubHead>What this work actually is</SubHead>
    <Body>The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over <BulletList items={[
      "the drawers",
      "the backup bedding",
      "the linen closets stacked with care",
      "the vintage pieces with story",
      "the everyday things with future value",
      "the candles tucked away because the house was always tidy enough",
      "the designer pieces in sizes the family doesn
```

s sitting in your real moment. We

Pricing

02 — Legacy Planning & Inventory Catalog

The operational side of a home, made visible again.

Not legal estate planning or estate sale services.

This is for the part of life most people don't realize has been quietly building for years — the things inside a home that became part of how life worked, long before anyone stopped to look at them.

It is not estate planning.

It is not asset planning.

It is planning the actual pieces of a life.

Not the will, not the paperwork, not the part a lawyer handles. The part that lives inside the walls.

Who this is for

The operational side of a home shows up for almost everyone, eventually. Sometimes it's a life change. Sometimes it's a move. Sometimes it's a quiet morning where the drawers, closets, and storage spaces stop matching the person living there.

This is for:

Most people will reach a point where the home outgrows who they are as a person. That doesn't mean calling someone to take it all to Goodwill. Goodwill doesn't always take it.

You might not have a car. You might not have a friend you're comfortable asking for a favor. And the things inside the home may deserve more than a bin at the curb anyway.

This work exists for that exact in-between.

What this work actually is

The operational side of a home is the layer that quietly adds up over time:

Sometimes the people who love you don't share your eye, your size, or the history behind what you chose. That is not a failure of family. It is just the reality of inherited space — people can only hold what they recognize.

This service is the person who can see what is actually there.

What Legacy Planning holds

The walls and the things inside them tell a story just as much as the person in the photographs.

This work is built to honor both — the operational layer that keeps a home running, and the meaning underneath the objects that deserve to carry forward with the right memory attached.

Possible outputs include:

When a piece has a story worth keeping with it, that history is documented too. That is the quiet bridge between Legacy Planning and Curated Resale. Items identified for sale during catalog work can route directly into Curated Resale & Consignment without restarting the process — and when story matters, the story travels with them.

How project timelines work

Larger projects are completed across focused work sessions over a shared timeline, rather than continuous daily presence.

A two-week catalog may look like three focused 11–4 sessions, with off-site documentation, resale routing, and continuity work completed between visits.

Single room or storage unit: $175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Whole home: project quote after walkthrough

Get in Touch

All Services

← Home Organization

Next: House Calls →

--- SERVICE: HOUSE CALLS ---

newly divorced

recently widowed

first time living alone
partner travels constantly
adult children supporting from another city
practical aftermath no one stays to help with
moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen
one-time practical resets
weekly support
monthly continuity
seasonal resets
remote family check-ins
post-project upkeep
vendor days
donation and return routing
home re-entry after travel
guest and event resets
the 4-hour practical reset
unwrap and sort everything
organize by month / size / first-use timeline
separate immediate essentials
identify duplicates
create return and resale routes
donate what will never realistically be used
clear packaging and gift-wrap chaos
order thank-you cards
export addresses to print
reset the room so it actually works for day one movers haulers cleaners
installers
contractors
storage teams

donation pickups

resale buyer coordination

shipping and courier

building and concierge protocol

service appointment access

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

/services/legacy

/services/resale

t the room — it

re home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn

t always want to say out loud.</Body>

<Body>The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.</Body>

<Body>This is for:</Body>

<BulletList items={[

"newly divorced",

"recently widowed",

"first time living alone",

"partner travels constantly",

"adult children supporting from another city",

"practical aftermath no one stays to help with",

"moments where the original plan stopped working and you still need the day to happen",

]} />

<Body>Sometimes there isn

s just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That

Pricing

03 — House Calls

For when the issue isn't the room — it's the person you used to have to call.

The world changed, the process got heavier, and no one can be expected to keep up with every new layer alone.

House Calls is the relief of having the missing person role built back into real life: the partner who handled it, the nearby parent, the neighbor, the adult child in another city, the friend who always knew how to make the day still work.

Who House Calls Is For

For the people who suddenly find themselves handling the parts of home life someone else used to quietly carry.

The bill that used to auto-resolve because your partner handled it. The appliance install that feels different when you're home alone. The digital login that somehow became intimidating overnight. The package, pickup, repair, donation, or appointment that shouldn't be a big deal but suddenly feels heavier than it should.

House Calls exists for the private, practical things people don't always want to say out loud.

The goal is not to make life look perfect. The goal is to make everyday life feel safe, manageable, and less isolating when the normal support system changed.

This is for:

Sometimes there isn't a perfect way around the problem. There's just the person who knows how to make the day work anyway. That's where House Calls is most useful.

Ways to use House Calls

Real-Life Example

The 8-month pregnant woman with a beautiful baby shower, hundreds of gifts, duplicate baby gear, no time, and no energy to turn a mountain of love into something functional.

The point is simple: everyone helps celebrate the moment — I help make it livable afterward.

That's House Calls.

Vendor & project oversight

When needed, House Calls also covers:

Service area

LA base but not radius-limited. Travel by project logic, with route-based efficiency and stops built into the flow. Quick asks can often be absorbed into an existing route.

Urgent timing and transition-sensitive requests are prioritized whenever possible.

$175/hr • 2 hr minimum

Retainer continuity available for repeat clients

No membership. No subscription. Ease comes from relationship, not a forced plan.

Get in Touch

All Services

← Legacy Planning Next: Curated Resale →

--- SERVICE: CURATED RESALE ---

clothing
designer accessories
jewelry
home decor furniture
art
rare textiles
story-rich vintage
one-of-a-kind pieces with real buyer demand pickup
intake
evaluation
photography
platform matching buyer communication
routing
return logic
donation reroute when appropriate
monthly reporting and payout rhythm
city pickup
route-based stop-ins
Uber Business courier
building desk drop
UPS Access Point
direct bag shipment
handoff during another project block
please get rid of this for me
Poshmark (Poshmark Ambassador — badge coming to profile soon)
eBay (new business profile, credible reviews building)

Etsy

Facebook Marketplace

Chairish

Vinted

Vestiaire

Grailed

vetted local high-end resale

future hosted client sales through the site

what deserves effort

what should wait

what gains value with story

what belongs in the collector world

what should be held for better timing

what needs to leave fast

what is better donated

what has emotional meaning worth preserving in the listing

rgba(245,240,232,0.65)

/contact

/services

/services/house-calls

re hoping for. We

Pricing

04 — Curated Resale & Consignment

For the things that still have value, story, or second-market potential — without asking you to become a part-time reseller.

What this is for

This service is best for items that have been well cared for, still hold real market interest, or deserve thoughtful placement through story-led resale.

It is not a donation pickup substitute, bulk textile recycling service, or a shortcut for things that are no longer in resellable condition.

This service is built for:

The work is not just listing. It includes:

The goal is to move the item into the right next life, not just the fastest sale.

Easy handoff and pickup

The handoff is intentionally easy. Depending on what makes the most sense for your week, items can move through:

The philosophy is simple: why spend time coordinating a bag when it can simply be in my hands by noon.

The longer we have worked together, the easier this process becomes.

Intake bags and safe transport

All pickup bags used for consignments are new, clean, and selected for safe transport.

When it is faster or more convenient, bags may be shipped directly to your home, dropped during an existing route, brought during another session, or couriered directly.

Item standards

This is a resale and curation service. It is not waste removal, donation hauling, contaminated textile removal, a recycling substitute, or a "please get rid of this for me" service. Those can fall into vendor coordination needs in my other brackets.

The best fit is: things you would like to think are good, possibly still valuable, interesting, or emotionally meaningful enough to deserve a thoughtful next life and are clean enough — or could be considered so after a wash or dry cleaning if value warrants. If you have a bag of those items, and intentions are good, the worst that can happen is you sent them to me and I said they are mostly not in good selling condition but I can move a few.

The assumption is: these are things you took care of and know deserve another life. That is the spirit of this service.

Where items sell

Items are routed by category and market fit for maximum return for you and best client match by selling platform.

Current sales channels include:

The route depends on item type, buyer demand, story value, platform behavior, furniture logistics, seasonality, and speed versus premium price goals.

Intake review timing

Once the items arrive, intake review typically takes 7–10 business days.

Within that window you will receive confirmation of what was received, what is accepted for sale, what may need hold timing, what may be rerouted, and what may not justify resale.

If workload, seasonality, or project volume changes that timeline, I will let you know.

Realistic resale timeline

This is a long game, not a fast-cash service.

Most strong items sell within the first 90 days.

Nearly everything with real demand finds its buyer within 6 to 9 months.

The right expectation is: resale rewards patience, not urgency. If immediate cash is the priority, resale may not be the best route.

The kind of judgment you are hiring

The reason this works is because I am not simply uploading things. I am making decisions around:

The point is not volume. The point is thoughtful curation that creates the best next life for the item and the most realistic return for the client.

That is the work.

Clean non-sellable items can move directly into approved donation channels without requiring separate client sorting.

Commission-based · agreement required

Get in Touch

All Services

← House Calls

All Services →